Hope Deferred.
One Billion Ounces.
Meteors Are Coming.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

Clarence Darrow says prohibition will be a thing of the past in 1931, perhaps sooner.

If hope deferred maketh the heart sick, Mr. Darrow and Congressman Black will have sick hearts. The House of Representatives is dry 2 to 1.

PRESIDENT HOOVER is warned by leaders in his own party that any wet move would be fatal to Republicans. The Republican party is threatened by the Anti-Saloon League with punishment if "it backslides."

There is not much hope of wet action there.

A GENTLEMAN is here from China to borrow from the United States government one thousand million ounces of silver, worth about $350,000,000.

China uses silver as money, and would be much obliged if Uncle Sam would lend a billion ounces.

FORTUNATELY WE are not in war days, when anybody could shovel out American billions to foreigners. Congress must pass on the proposed Chinese loan, and will probably ask:

"Do you want the money to feed your starving tens of millions, or to give your 500,000 soldiers their back pay and keep up the fighting?"

A GREAT SWARM of meteors is headed toward the earth, and the head of the procession should be visible next Saturday. You get an idea of the swarm's size, reading that the tail of the procession, its units traveling much more rapidly than rifle bullets, is three years away.

It is the terrific speed of these meteors, usually made of practically solid iron, and often as big as a cottage, that saves us from them.

BECAUSE OF their speed the meteors melt and become dust from friction when they strike our atmosphere, and rarely hurt anybody on earth, the majority settling on the ocean's bed as meteoric dust.

If their speed were diminished by 99 per cent or more, the swarm now approaching would probably kill half the people on earth.

THE BUSINESS world, including all publishers, will appreciate President Hoover's sound advice to advertisers.

Those with long experience in advertising know that its evils correct themselves. Advertising not founded on truth and value will not last. A good name, with advertising as with women, is the most valuable of all assets.

The General Motors factory and machinery are worth probably two hundred million dollars. The name of General Motors products is worth more than two thousand million dollars.

A good advertisement must do five things and do them all. If it fails in one it fails in all. It must make people SEE it, READ it, UNDERSTAND it, BELIEVE it, WANT it.

SIR HENRI DETERDING, of Shell Oil, is a busy man. He runs gigantic oil enterprises in Java, China, Africa, Venezuela, and all over the United States. Now Russia accuses him of plotting to overthrow her government and threatens to execute eight conspirators alleged to be associated with him.

THERE IS strength in unity and Deterding has that strength. Our oil companies are many. Our biggest, most powerful company, Standard, is chopped up into small pieces to keep it from getting too big.

John D. Rockefeller, who created it, is past 90, and not active. The men that helped him build it, Archbold, Rogers, are dead. To Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., money means as little as the salt water in the ocean means to a fisherman's boy. He is busy with science, philanthropy, home building, art restoration, and has no time for Standard Oil, or money-making.

ABLE MEN that in old days would have continued building Standard Oil's power, giving Deterding a desperate fight, are now confined to minor activities, busy inventing cunning names for Standard Oil products that compete with each other, bewilder the public and injure Standard Oil.

That company needs a lawyer to tell it how to protect itself and its stockholders from the Dutch-British competition which is pushing it to the wall and says condescendingly:

"Well, not to hurt your feelings, I shall send in less oil from Venezuela to the United States and use up cheap California oil instead."

BROOKLYN, "City of Churches," may change its name to "City of Gangsters." Murdered men, sitting or sprawling in their automobiles, are frequent features of Brooklyn scenery.

Yesterday Brooklyn's police were interested in a dying man whose tongue had been shot out of his head, and in the "shooting up" of an undertaking shop in which the rows of coffins and occasional corpses are supposed to be blinds for a bootleg racketeer business.

WALES FLIES BIGGEST PLANE

Handles Controls 10 Minutes; Ability Praised by Crew; Hops Back to London

International News Service.

CALSHOT AERODROME, England, Nov. 12.—The Prince of Wales for 10 minutes today became a transport pilot of the largest heavier-than-air craft in the world.

Taking the controls of the giant flying boat DO-X for 10 minutes during his 25-minute flight in that craft, the Prince, a licensed pilot, put the big ship through its paces over the harbor of Southampton and earned the unqualified praise of the officers of the DO-X for his handling of the ship.

Co-pilot Merz, of the flying boat, said after the ship had landed:

"The Prince is a very fine pilot."

PRINCE MODEST

The Prince was very modest concerning his feat, but expressed himself very much pleased with the flight and said he enjoyed the manner in which the big ship answered to the controls. He told Dr. Claude Dornier, designer of the DO-X, that he was impressed with the vastness and comfort of the ship, and congratulated Capt. Christiansen on the latter's ability to handle so large a ship with such skill both in the air and on the water.

Others, however, who made the flight with the Prince were unstinted in their praise for the Prince's ability as a pilot. Among those who made the flight with him were Lord and Lady Louis Mountbatten and Frau Dornier, wife of the ship's designer.

HANDLES WHEEL

For 10 minutes the Prince handled the wheel of the big ship, putting it through banks and cir-

Britain May Buy DO-X Sister Ship

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The London Herald today says the British air ministry is considering the purchase of a sister ship to the great German seaplane DO-X, to be powered by British motors. An American order for a similar ship also is possible, the newspaper says. The Dornier company, of Altenrhein, Switzerland, is building two planes of the DO-X type for Italy.

Moses Doesn't Trust Democrats In English, Latin

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

"Timeo Democrats et dona ferentes."

Meaning to beware of Democrats bearing campaign gifts. He regards Democratic co-operation the same way that McIntyre regarded Heath.

At the end of an unsuccessful search for a lost dollar, McIntyre looked gloomily at Heath and said:

"Ah doan say you took that dollar. But I do say Ah might have found it if you hadn't helped me to look fo' it."

The Democrats and Republicans will pull together like a noose and a neck.

We don't know why Senator Moses went into Latin just when he was starting to get his apologies so perfect in English.

If the Democrats have any gifts the Republicans should grab them first and talk politics second.

We would like to be around when that big reconciliation takes place.

Will Al Smith and Andy Mellon rush into each other's arms on the Capitol steps, or will they wait coyly until the moon goes behind the clouds?

The first big peace conference should be divided into three-minute subjects with a minute's rest between each agreement.

$1,520,000 FUND DRIVE STARTS

Welfare Army Starts Out On 2-Week Campaign to Canvass Allegheny County

The Welfare Fund's 1930 campaign got off to an auspicious start today as announcement was made at the initial meeting of workers in Hotel William Penn that 21 industrial and business concerns already had pledged $440,125, slightly more than one-fourth the goal of $1,520,248.

This statement by F. A. Leovy, chairman of the corporations division, brought cheers from the nearly 2,300 canvassers, each of whom made a pledge to the fund before going out to carry an appeal to others in behalf of needy and unemployed families of this district.

URGES VIGOROUS DRIVE

Attorney E. W. Smith, vice president of the Welfare Fund, urged the workers to carry their plea earnestly and vigorously, as the need was great. The fact was stressed that only 4 per cent of the fund is spent in administration and campaign expenses.

A. K. Oliver, president, and Joseph Dilworth, general campaign chairman, also urged the workers to carry their efforts to successful finish.

CANVASS BEGINS

Following the meeting, the workers began carrying the Welfare message into Allegheny County's homes, factories and offices, appealing to the public in a concentrated two-week campaign to relieve the suffering of the unfortunate which has been accentuated by the present unemployment condition.

That Allegheny county employes would do their bit for the Fund was indicated when County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong announced each had pledged a day's pay. A printed appeal was sent the employes by the commissioner urging support of the fund.

A meeting of the City Public Safety Department will be held late this afternoon to consider contribution of a day's pay to the fund. Laborers and those working part time will not be asked to contribute.

WAHR LEAVES $1,500,000

The estate of Harry H. Wahr, of West Homestead, vice president of the Mesta Machine Company, who hanged himself in his home November 5, was set at $1,500,000 today as letters of administration were issued by Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackreil.

The procedure was taken after it was learned that Wahr, who ended his life by hanging himself to a door, according to the coroner, had died intestate.

Three relatives were mentioned in letters. Mrs. Corinne M. Wahr, his bride of a few weeks; Mrs. Anna E. Wahr, mother, and Mrs. Hilda W. Willis, of Detroit, a sister.

BOMB IN AUTO HURTS TEACHER

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 12.—(INS.)—W. F. Heidergott, 54, instructor in practical mechanics at Purdue University here, was injured seriously today when a bomb that had been placed in his automobile exploded as he stepped into the car preparing to go to his classes at the university.

The bomb blew the car to pieces, knocked the roof off the garage, shattered windows in surrounding houses and injured the left side of the instructor's face. He was rushed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where Dr. F. B. Thompson performed an emergency operation. His condition was pronounced as serious.

The blast rocked houses for five blocks in the vicinity and was heard a half mile away.

Town Hall Site Fails to Interest Commissioners

Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong ordered:

"Mark it received and filed."

To which Commissioner C. C. McGovern opined:

"That's very kind of them."

Armstrong continued:

"While we are on the town hall subject, the people of the Cathedral district have asked for a hearing and we ought to give them a hearing."

There was no further action.

OBER, PIONEER BREWER, DIES

Henry Ober, 70, pioneer brewer here, member of the old brewing firm of Eberhardt & Ober, and a stockholder of the Iron City Brewing Company, fell dead today after going to the Iron City offices, 3340 Liberty avenue, to attend the annual stockholders' meeting.

Fellow stockholders said that Mr. Ober had been in the office a short time and was waiting for the meeting to be called when he toppled over. He was dead when a physician reached him.

Heart disease was given as the cause of death by deputy coroners. With Mr. Ober at the meeting was a brother, Charles F. Ober, of 912 Cedar avenue, also a stockholder.

Marriage Near, Girl Disappears

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—While Joseph S. Pasanisi, 28, and Angeline Formica, 22, were waiting to be married in the city chapel, Angeline turned to Joseph and said:

"Excuse me a minute—I want a drink of water."

Joseph and his two witnesses waited several minutes and then got worried. They searched, but the prospective bride was not to be found. Today, Joseph still was looking, with an unused marriage license for a guide.

M'DONALD FIRM ON PALESTINE

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Prime Minister MacDonald told the House of Commons today that the British government intends to carry out its obligations under the mandate to both sections of the Palestine population.

No ordinances on the basis of the recent White Paper regarding the British attitude towards Jews and Arabs in Palestine will be framed before there has been discussion of the White Paper in the House of Commons, said the prime minister.

Mr. MacDonald made the statements, which were in response to questions, after reiterating a recent governmental assertion that the White Paper had given rise to some misunderstanding and had been misinterpreted in some of its essential points.

Mail Flier Leaps To Safety in Fog

SHELBY, N. C., Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Hopelessly fighting his way through a thick fog, and his gasoline supply exhausted, Dick Merrill, flying a northbound New York-Atlanta airmail plane, early today was forced to take to his parachute and jump.

He was found, unhurt save for a slightly sprained ankle, about 20 miles west of here this morning.

Venizelos to Get Ministry of War

ATHENS, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Premier Venizelos, who already is minister of aviation, is to assume still another cabinet post when the chamber of deputies meets again. He will become minister of war, succeeding the present minister, Sophoules, who is to be elected speaker of the chamber.

GIRL, MAN BEAT, ROB CHINESE

Aided by a pretty blonde girl, a man today beat Yee Dick, who has a laundry shop at 618 Taylor avenue, into insensibility, and after binding and gagging him, escaped with $60 from the cash register, according to a police report.

The laundryman told police the robber and the girl entered his place and asked to use his telephone, which is in his sleeping room in the rear. When the man went back with the laundryman, the girl shut and locked the door and the man struck Dick with the butt end of a revolver, he said.

Upon regaining consciousness, Dick told police, he found himself stretched out on his couch, his hands and feet tied, and a gag in his mouth. Police found both the outside door and the bedroom door locked when Dick managed to work the gag loose enough so that he could cry out, and they broke into the place.

Dick was able to give only meager descriptions of the couple. The man, he said, was aged about 25, was of medium build, and wore glasses. The girl, a pretty blonde, was aged about 20, Dick said.

Maxey to Succeed Von Moschzisker

JEERS DRIVE HUNGRY MAN TO SUICIDE

Jobless for months, the future held no prospects.

So he stole a loaf of bread. He thought it might push starvation at least another day away from House No. 4, Rural Ridge, Indiana Township.

A constable searched for him and yesterday paid an official visit to the modern Jean Val Jean. He was to answer to the law for that loaf. He told a relative last night:

"I could never face a court for stealing."

FIND HIM DEAD

Today his hungry children found his lifeless body hanging from the cellar ceiling. The coroner recorded it:

"Joseph Drusin, 39, suicide."

His was the third death reported to the coroner as suicide in 24 hours.

Until three months ago, Drusin had been employed by the Monarch Steel Company, in whose village he lived with his family. He had hoped for a long time—had hoped until the bread gave out.

BUNGLES THEFT

Stealing wasn't easy for him, his friends said. But he took the bread from the kitchen of a neighbor, and from a thief's viewpoint, bungled it.

As he was walking out of the kitchen of Mrs. Mary Fatchko, with the bread under his arm, she walked in. She demanded to know what he was doing. Ashamed, he laid the loaf on her table and with bowed head walked through a crowd that had gathered. Mrs. Fatchko swore out an information before Justice of the Peace Lloyd Collier.

Yesterday a constable walked across the fields to Drusin's house. Behind him, ragged boys and girls jumbled. When the constable entered the house, the children yelled:

"Robber! Robber!"

It wouldn't have been so shaming if his four children, Elizabeth, 16; Teresa, 12; John, 20 and Mrs. Verna Rottenthaler had been away. But they were there and heard the constable tell him to appear for a hearing.

This morning Verna found him hanging from a rafter. Dr. E. A. Richards pronounced the man dead.

This afternoon there was still no bread in the Drusin bread box. One can of beans rested alone on the kitchen shelf.

Hunting Plan Balked, Boy Kills Himself

The coroner recorded the death as suicide.

Young Giger had been planning to go hunting for several days, police said, but members of his family would not permit him.

Pinchot Pledges He Won't 'Rock Boat' of Business

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Gov.-elect Gifford Pinchot had gone on record today pledging to do all in his power to aid legitimate business. His pledge was made last night at the annual convention of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, when he said:

"There will be no rocking of the boat, since we are in hard times."

The convention and considered ways and means for relieving unemployment. The suggestion of Albert M. Greenfield, wealthy real estate operator, that the so-called Sunday blue laws be suspended for a single Sunday and the theaters opened for the benefit of the unemployed received the hearty support of the theaters owners, Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, offered the free use of the 72 theaters here controlled by his firm and asserted he would pay the costs of operation.

Greenfield said he made the suggestion that the theaters be opened for the one Sunday in the belief that the gate receipts would be larger. He disavowed any intent to attack the Sunday laws and asserted the unemployment situation was so great now, temporary steps should be taken immediately to relieve it.

The suggestion, however, was reported to have met with the disapproval of the Rev. W. B. Forney, secretary of the Philadelphia Sabbath School Association, who said any other day would be just as well.

Pola's Prince in Battle On Ocean Liner

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Four minutes of fisticuffing on the afterdeck of the liner France, between Prince Serge Mdivani, Pola Negri's estranged husband, and Harry Robles, vaudeville actor, enlivened the trip for passengers of the vessel, which docked today.

Both participants told reluctantly of the fight and said they were friends again. Prince Mdivani took exception to a remark made by Robles during a party aboard ship, and they settled the matter with their fists. The prince's upper lip was slightly cut.

Prince Mdivani booked passage as "S. Davis." Of the recent Paris action of Miss Negri, final papers in which are pending, he said:

"I'm very glad it is all over. Miss Negri is a beautiful woman. It was a question of sharp difference in character and temperament. She was for art and I for business."

FESS OUSTER SOUGHT IN G. O. P. SPLIT OVER PROHIBITION

ANTI-DRYS RAP PARTY CHIEF

Capital Observers Predict Chairman Will Retire As Sequel to Election

By GEORGE E. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Predictions of a Republican split over prohibition in 1932 seemed well on the way to fulfillment today as prominent anti-drys and drys in the party hammered away at each other in lusty fashion.

The immediate target of the anti-drys is Senator Simeon D. Fess, the bone-dry chairman of the Republican National Committee and the frequent champion of the Anti-Saloon League on the Senate floor. There is a well-defined movement afoot to replace Fess as chairman, not so much on account of the reverses the party suffered last week under his direction, but because he has laid down the ultimatum that the Republicans must stay dry.

PRESIDENT'S CHOICE

The party chairmanship, of course, is the prerogative of the President. The dry Ohioan was placed in the office by President Hoover's direction. He will remain until Mr. Hoover indicates a desire to have him replaced, irrespective of how much the anti-drys desire him ousted.

If the opposition, however, gets too strong, Mr. Hoover may be prevailed upon to act if for no other reason than to preserve peace in the party. Mr. Hoover presumably intends to be a candidate for re-election in 1932, and the prohibition issue will be troublesome enough anyway without the added factor of a party chairman who is the target of a considerable section of the party.

FESS MAY RETIRE

The expectation prevails in Washington that after Congress meets and the Wickersham commission, which resumed its sessions today, has made some sort of a report, it will be announced that Fess' senatorial duties have become so arduous that they will no longer permit his occupancy of the chairmanship of the party.

The ultimatum laid down by Fess was:

"The Republican party will stay dry or it will split."

This challenge has promptly been accepted by leading anti-drys in the party, who have been greatly heartened by the anti-prohibition wave that swept last Tuesday's elections. They are demanding to know whether the Republicans of New York, Illinois, New Jersey and other influential states are to be ignored in the 1932 convention.

WADSWORTH'S VIEW

Ex-Senator James W. Wadsworth, of New York, expressed this situation by saying:

"The trouble with Senator Fess is that he cannot see what is going on in this country. Tears dim his sight. We want our party to be right upon the only fundamental constitutional issue that has arisen since the days of the Civil War, and we will fight to make it right, split or no split."

BRITTEN RAPS FESS

To which was added this comment from Representative Fred Britten (Rep.), of Illinois, one of the anti-dry leaders in the House:

"If Senator Fess is so blind or so intolerant that he cannot analyze the desires of millions of voters in the progressive northern states, the National Committee should elect another chairman before the arid Senator further depresses the party."

The anti-drys contend that Fess' bone-dry dictum comes all the more unfortunately at this time when his own state of Ohio has just deserted prohibition to the extent of electing a wringing wet Democrat to the Senate in a campaign in which prohibition was the chief issue.

8 Persons Burned In 2 Oil Well Fires

cles over the harbor, while the 12 powerful motors roared their deafening challenge to the air. It was with reluctance that the Prince surrendered the controls to Capt. Christiansen when the time came for landing the ponderous craft.

Turning to Dr. Dornier as he relinquished control, the Prince said:

"She's a wonderful ship."

While the ship was landing, the Prince and his companions were the interested observers of an experiment conducted by the ship's officers. A glass of sherry wine was placed on the saloon table just before Capt. Christiansen nosed the ship down to the water. The landing was made so smoothly that not a drop of the wine was spilled.

OFFERS TOAST

Before leaving the ship, the Prince toasted Dr. Dornier, Capt. Christiansen and members of the DO-X crew, wishing them success on their projected Atlantic flight. The compliment was returned by a toast to the Prince's health.

As soon as the landing was made, the Prince returned by launch to his own amphibian, in which he took off immediately on his return to London, where he had an engagement later in the afternoon.

Before the amphibian started, however, Capt. Christiansen made a second flight of five minutes with the DO-X in order to enable the Prince to see the flying boat take off and land.

FOG HOLDS UP CUBAN HOP

Awaiting a rift in the dense fog which has pervaded Pittsburgh for the past several days, Mrs. Keith Miller, Australian flier, and winner of the transcontinental air derby of 1927, is delaying her proposed flight from this city to Havana, Cuba.

After a conference with William S. Brotzman, weather forecaster, Mrs. Miller declared that the flight would be postponed for several days.

Mr. Brotzman stated that the fog had been the heaviest in the vicinity for some time, and that flying under such conditions would be extremely uncertain.

SLAYER OF WIFE PLEADS GUILTY

John McNab, 48, pleaded guilty generally to the murder of his common-law wife, Mrs. Mary Sweeney McNab, when brought to trial today in Criminal Court.

McNab was sentenced by Judge Elder W. Marshall to serve between five and 15 years in the penitentiary.

After the woman's body was found buried under the porch of their home, 159 Wabash avenue, last July, McNab admitted that in a drinking quarrel he had pushed the woman down the steps and later buried her.

McNab told the court that he had been married in Scotland, had seven children and did not know if his wife was alive or dead. Explaining why he buried the body in the yard, he said he was keeping it until he could locate a sister of the dead woman.

MARION DAVIES, 1,700 VETERANS MAKE MERRY

Film Star Hostess at Great Los Angeles Fete; Noted Guests Present

By JOSEPH J. O'NEILL, Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 12.—In honor of the men whose valor, 12 years ago, brought peace to a strife-torn world, a patriotic young Los Angeles hostess, Miss Marion Davies, tendered a party last night in the Hotel Biltmore that brought happily together some 1,700 veterans of the World War and a like number of their wives and sisters and sweethearts.

Herself an honorary colonel in the same smart Twenty-sixth U. S. Infantry, the charming golden-haired cinema-star greeted as comrades the fighting men of that and other high ranks—but no more cordially than she greeted the buck privates of the file.

MARION WEARS UNIFORM

And this fine feeling of kinship with the rank and file was displayed in Miss Davies' own person. For she was attired, not as a film princess or even as a young woman of wealth and station, but in the full-dress uniform of a colonel of the Army, as befitted the occasion.

She was not Miss Davies—she was Col. Davies, in tunic and breeches, cap, boots and spurs, and Sam Browne belt.

It was a gay, merry party. For size—with 3,500 present—for lavishness, for congenialty, for civic and service prominence of the guests, including Gov.-elect James Rolph, Jr., it was almost unique in Los Angeles social history. There were music and song, laughter and cheers, light feet and light hearts.

But back of all this there was a serious purpose. This—

To recapture some of that fine spirit of well-being, of mutuality of interest, of prosperity, of "like - and - help - everybody," which gripped the United States of America on November 11, 1918, when the glad news of the armistice set millions marching and dancing in our streets.

To inject into the atmosphere of today a spirit of good-cheer, and help dispel the doldrums into which so much of the population recently has drifted.

To set a practical example of that prosperity creed lately preached in high places—"spend—put money in circulation—get everybody back into good-humor and back to work—and prosperity."

That was the idea of Marion Davies' party — with insistence upon one further thing:

PRESENTS COLOR STAND

Outstanding among such ceremonies of the night as might be called formal, was the presentation by Col. Davies of a beautiful set of colors to the Southern California sector of the Society of the First Division, of which she is an honorary member.

The presentation of the colors, and a speech by Gov.-Elect Rolph, were the only formal features of the evening.

KING GEORGE SEES PEACE IN INDIA

British Ruler, Welcoming Potentates to Conference, Confident of Its Outcome

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—King George, ruler over the mightiest empire of all time, today convened representatives of Britain and India in a conference which, during the coming winter, will attempt to evolve a government for the Asiatic empire satisfactory to its restless millions.

His Majesty, expressing anxiety at the course of events in India, told his hearers that he would follow their deliberations with closest attention, but with confidence in their success. He said:

"It is my hope that the future government of India, based on foundations of mutual obligations and their recognition and fulfillment, will give expression to her honorable aspirations."

The formal, imposing opening of the deliberations was held amidst the gorgeous regal trappings of the royal gallery of the House of Lords, official home of the British nobility. Eighty-six delegates were present. Of these, 57 were from the provinces of India and 16 from the native Indian states, including nine powerful ruling princes. Thirteen were members of the British Parliament.

PRISONER GANDHI WATCHES

Meanwhile, in far-off Hindustan Mahatma Gandhi, picturesque and ascetic leader of the widespread Indian revolt for absolute independence, was watching proceedings in London from a Poona prison cell. He and the millions of rebellious, resentful Indians who follow his word were not represented at the assembly, which they voted months ago to boycott.

Could he have visualized the scene in the royal gallery he would have seen a vast hall which was one blaze of crimson and gold. The King's throne chair stood on the outer rim of two large circles of tables, one circle within the other, to accommodate the delegates. The Indian princes, representing fabulous wealth and power, sat about an inner table making a colorful spectacle in their ornate Oriental headdress. Beside the throne was an ordinary chair for Ramsay MacDonald, England's Labor prime minister, who, after the King spoke, was nominated and made chairman of the assembly.

After His Majesty had finished his brief address he shook hands with Mr. MacDonald and then stepped from the low dais on which his throne stood. Bowing first to the delegates on his left and then to those on his right, he walked slowly from the hall.

KING LEAVES HALL

Mr. MacDonald then took the floor. He spoke slowly and appeared to be making one of the greatest efforts of his striking career. He seemed rather worn, and the tired lines of his strong face were deep. There were shadows about his eyes which spoke of fatigue. Usually he speaks extemporaneously, but today he read carefully from his manuscript. Ripples of applause frequently interrupted him.

"We are now at the very birth of a new history. Declarations made by British sovereigns and statesmen from time to time that Britain's work in India was to prepare her for self government have been plain. . . . We have met to try to register by agreement a recognition of the fact that India has reached a distinctive point in her constitutional evolution."

VETS UPHELD IN STORE RAID

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., Nov. 12.—City officials have upheld the action of war veterans who forced a grocery store to close yesterday by the use of tear bombs. Mayor C. B. Bradfield said:

"There will be no need for any more bombings, for council will pass an ordinance making it mandatory on the part of merchants to close on Armistice Day."

The soldiers, wearing steel helmets and carrying rifles, were led to the store by C. W. Fowler, commander of the Belmont County American Legion. He did not enter. Nelson McQuillan, a former officer of the Ohio "40 and 8," fun society of the American Legion, was among those who went inside. McQuillan said:

"The veterans considered it their right to close the store on Armistice Day just the same as they would protest any attempt of anyone to tear down the American flag."

Operators of the store protested against the attack to Mayor Bradfield, but no charges were filed. The mayor had issued a proclamation calling for closing of all stores.

ARMISTICE DAY ENDS IN DANCES

Banquets, reunions and dances in the hotels and clubs throughout the county last night brought a close to the Armistice Day celebration here in which thousands of World War veterans and many heroes of other wars participated.

The big event of the evening was the military ball of the American Legion, held in the William Penn Hotel and attended by army officials and other distinguished guests entertained here during the day. Other dances last night were held by Vesle Post, V. F. W., in Ruthenian Hall, and the 111th Infantry at the Logan Armory.

Banquets were held by the 53rd Field Artillery in the Fort Pitt Hotel; by the 80th Division Veterans in the Plaza Restaurant and by the W. Ralph McNulty Post, V. F. W., in Webster Hall.

In Homestead last night veterans of the World War were entertained at a banquet in Moose Temple. The speakers at the banquet were Judge James H. Gray, of Common Pleas Court, and Burgess John J. Cavanaugh. A vaudeville program followed the banquet.

AMERICANS THAT have "done Europe" will learn with sadness that the house of Munroe & Co., has closed its doors. Several generations of Americans have made the bank their headquarters in Paris and thousands that knew no other French knew Sept Rue Scribe, which was the old address, or Quatre Rue Ventadour, the address just closed.

THE ILL FORTUNE of the old American house in Paris is part of an alarming crumbling process in French banking institutions that has suddenly taken France by surprise.

The French, however, are resourceful, thrifty, entirely beyond our conception of thrift, and the French government will know how to stabilize its financial institutions.

Truce of Two Parties Welcomed by Coolidge

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Nov. 12.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The declaration of seven Democratic leaders that they do not propose to engage in obstruction is an encouraging feature in national politics. It has been cordially received by Republican leaders, and so far as public statements are effective will tend to allay apprehension about political bickerings. The truce is too late to cure the present economic situation. The most that can be said for it is that our state is not so bad as it might have been without it.

Calvin Coolidge

If responsible leaders really mean that they do not propose to countenance artificial political effort by their party in the Congress it is of much importance. During the recent months there has been too much effort of that kind by both parties in Washington. We have had too much government action, with attendant publicity, proposing to cure human illness which no government can cure and too much public opposition when there was nothing to oppose. The people want from both parties an effective and quiet conduct of public affairs. If the state of business and the election finally have impressed this on our office holders we now can hope for improvement.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Chicken Dinner No. 120 Yields Lost Diamond

RESEDA, Cal., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The law of averages worked for Mrs. Mabel Long and she got her $1,000 diamond back after serving a chicken a day to her husband, S. S. Long, since mid-July.

Mrs. Long, while scattering corn to the flock, which numbered 250 chickens, lost the setting of her ring.

"We'll just have to eat the old chickens," Mrs. Long told her husband. "One of them got the diamond and we'll find it in its crop."

"Well," Long reasoned, "if the law of averages works we'll find it when we kill the one hundred and twenty-fifth fowl."

SIR HENRI AND LADY DETERDING...THE BRITISH OIL KING

Sir Henri of "Shell" fame. His name, too, was mentioned and England was accused of plotting to get the Caucasian oil fields. Sir Henri laughed at the accusation, said Soviet leaders had to invent such stories to cover up the disintegration of their system.

RUSS CHARGES AMUSE LONDON

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Soviet indictments of eight prominent Russians for alleged counter-revolutionary plotting with British and French governmental figures were believed here today to be a form of domestic propaganda, not to be taken seriously abroad.

Mild amusement was the reaction in authoritative London circles. Sir Henri Deterding, international oil leader, who was one of the men accused by the Moscow prosecutor, N. V. Krylenko, of plotting the overthrow of the Moscow regime, laughed outright.

Sir Henri was particularly interested to learn that the names of those accused as his co-conspirators in the counter-revolutionary enterprise included "Col. Lawrence, of Arabia," "Lord Churchill," believed to be Mr. Winston Churchill, former chancellor of the exchequer; "Director Simon," believed to be Sir John Simon, Liberal leader, and Sir Philip of Vickers.

Neither Winston Churchill nor Sir John Simon has ever had more than a passing interest in Russian matters.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Mingled astonishment and indignation were expressed in official circles here today over the charges made in a Soviet Russian indictment of an international conspiracy to wreck the Soviet regime.

Official spokesmen took the attitude that the allegations were not worthy of a denial, but M. Poincare was quoted as saying that the charges were "pure invention."

WILL HOLD TRIAL

MOSCOW, Nov. 12. — Undismayed by the flurry caused abroad by publication of the charges, the Soviet government will proceed immediately with the trial of eight prominent Russians charged with participation in an alleged international conspiracy to overthrow the Soviet regime.

CLARA BOW, GIRL AIDE, BREAK

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 12.—(INS.)—One of Hollywood's closest friendships was at an end with the announcement of Clara Bow, red-haired film star, that she had reached a parting of the ways with her confidential secretary, Daisy Devoe.

For several years the two have been close companions, and every time Miss Bow became involved in some publicity-getting rumpus, Miss Devoe stood before her issuing statements or denials or doing whatever the occasion demanded.

Miss Bow carried out the instructions urgently recommended to her recently by her attorney, that she make no more public statements without his advice, no matter what new variety of news story she might create.

Neither Miss Devoe nor W. I. Gilbert, Miss Bow's attorney, coul be reached for amplification of the simple admission made by Miss Bow that she had broken with her secretary.

BOSWELL SCRIPT SOLD TO ISHAM

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Col. Ralph Heyward Isham, New York banker and bibliophile, announced he had purchased 107 pages of the original manuscript of Boswell's "Life of Samuel Johnson," and all of the original manuscript of Boswell's "The Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides." The documents were found only recently.

Col. Isham said he obtained the papers from Lord Talbot de Malahide, a descendant of Johnson's biographer.

Col. Isham declined to reveal what he paid for them. It is known, however, that a New York book dealer offered $80,000 for 16 pages of "The Life," included in the 1927 collection. At that time these pages were believed to be the only remnant of the original manuscript.

The newly found "Journal" manuscript contains an account of a trip Boswell and Dr. Johnson made in 1773.

3 KILLED IN RAID FOR TREASURE

BOSCOBEL, Wis., Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Posses were searching in five Wisconsin counties today for three bandits and a woman accomplice who shot and killed three men and critically wounded a fourth in a raid on a wealthy farmer's home in search of buried treasure.

The dead are Patrick Gorman, 65; his son, Paul, 18, and Cornelius Horrigan, 60, a brother-in-law of Gorman's. Stephen Horrigan, a brother of the dead man, was seriously wounded in a gun battle with the assailants and is not expected to live.

The Horrigans, on whose farm the killings took place, were wealthy, and much of their wealth is said to be buried on the farm.

An automobile drew up at the farm late yesterday and three young men and a girl stepped out and entered the Horrigan home, where the four men were at dinner.

All three flashed pistols and when young Paul Gorman reached for a pistol in his hip pocket they opened fire, killing Paul Gorman and his father on the spot and fatally wounding Cornelius Horrigan.

Although wounded in the arm, Stephen Horrigan procured a shotgun and opened fire on the quartet, wounding one of the gunmen seriously. All four then fled.

Thornton Wilder Ill In Chicago Hospital

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Suffering from an attack of influenza, Thornton Wilder, widely known novelist, was in the Billings Memorial Hospital, attached to the University of Chicago, where he has been lecturing on contemporary literature.

University authorities, revealing for the first time that the author was ill, said he had been taken to the hospital Sunday. They emphasized that the illness was not serious.

SLOAN OPPOSES WAGE CUTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Announcing that the General Motors Corporation has maintained salaries and wages, President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., said that a reduction in the wage scale would not only delay the return of normal times, but unnecessarily limit the future prosperity of the nation.

In a letter to stockholders accompanying the nine months' earning statement, previously made public, Mr. Sloan said that in his opinion "it is important for industry to appreciate the fact that the country's prosperity is founded on a high wage scale."

He continued:

"The broader the margin that exists between the daily wage and the necessities of life, the more the individual has available to purchase additional products and enjoy and profit by his leisure hours. This development of purchasing power creates wealth, which in turn reacts and reacts throughout our whole industrial situation.

"General Motors has not reduced either salaries or wages, and it is my hope that no readjustment of that character will be necessary."

MISS DAVIDSON'S BODY FOUND

BLUE HILL, Me., Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Suicide by drowning was the verdict today in the death of Miss Alice R. Davidson, 51, member of a wealthy Pittsburgh family, for whom a search by airplane and posse of 250 persons had been made since November 3 and a reward of $1,500 posted.

The body was found resting on a piling beneath a small boat landing, two miles from her summer home at Parkers Point, by Max Hinckley, his son and another boy.

Miss Davidson, suffering from a nervous disorder, had spent the summer here with her mother, Mrs. N. J. Davidson, and other members of the family. They were to have left for Pittsburgh last Friday.

Miss Davidson, who, with her mother had been spending the summer in Maine, was the daughter of the late Joseph N. Davidson, former president of the Second National Bank of Allegheny, and head of the Columbia Plate Glass Company. She lived at 4909 Ellsworth avenue. She and her mother had planned to leave for home the day of her disappearance.

DUEL OVER GIRL, 1 DEAD, 1 DYING

BALTIMORE, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The glare of flames which destroyed a Howard County home early today revealed a fatal duel between Herman Westphal, 70, known to neighbors as a recluse, and Charles Hubble, 40, who had married the young woman who five years ago divorced Westphal.

Hubble, a farm laborer, was found dead, with a bullet in his head. Westphal, farmer and caretaker, had a wound in his left side and physicians at a hospital here said they had little hope for his recovery.

Police said the two men have been enemies for several years. About four years ago they were told, Westphal was married to a 16-year-old girl, Gussie Dressler. They lived together only a short time and then she obtained a divorce and married Hubble.

EWALD PROBERS QUIZ WALKER

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Mayor James J. Walker signed a waiver of immunity today and went before a special grand jury investigating charges of judicial corruption to tell about his appointment of former Magistrate George F. Ewald to the bench in 1927.

The Mayor's testimony was understood to be along the lines of what he told a regular county grand jury several months ago in connection with charges against Ewald, who has since been indicted with three others on charges of office buying.

Mayor Walker told the county grand jury that his appointment of Ewald was based solely on a recommendation in a letter sent him by the Steuben Society.

Mayor Walker was closeted with the grand jury for an hour and four minutes. When he came out he refused to comment. Asked if he enjoyed the experience, he responded:

"I was doing my duty. I always enjoy doing my duty."

Passion Play Profits Ban Oberammergau Lean Years

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The final apportionment of profits among the Passion Play performers turned out to be a pleasant surprise for all, as net profits proved much greater than anticipated. This is especially welcome as there are nine "lean years" to come before the next series of performances brings more grist to the mill.

Apart from Stage Manager Johann George Lang, who draws 2,000 and Choirmaster Guido Diemer, to whom $1,750 is allotted, the star actors, Alois Long (Christ) and Hugo Rutz (Caiaphas) each receive $1,375. Anni Rutz (Mary) and the recently married Hansi Preisinger (Magdalen) each draw $875, and so on down to $75 for each child actor.

Today there are no more Nazarenes and Galileans on the village streets. They have all gone back to their trades, mostly woodcarving. All profess relief at getting rid of their heavy manes of hair, which they found especially trying in the hot weather.

Victoria's Daughter at 82 Smokes Rank Cigarets

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Queen Mary, it would appear, is not the lone smoker among the feminine members of the royal family.

Princess Louise, 82-year-old daughter of the austere Queen Victoria and aunt of King George, says "The Londoner" in his diary in the Evening Standard, not only smokes cigarets, but likes "gaspers," a British term for cheap, strong cigarets that grip the throat.

Writing about a visit by the princess to a regimental concert of her own Kensington regiment, he says:

"Not long ago she commented, the moment she arrived, on the fact that the men weren't smoking, 'let them all smoke,' she said, 'in fact I want a cigaret myself.'

"A box was handed to the princess with the apology that the cigarets were not of an expensive brand.

"'Nonsense,' she replied, 'I always smoke gaspers.'"

LONE SURVIVOR OF SHIP TELLS HORRORS

Adrift 70 Hours, Boat's Mate Describes Battle With Gale-Maddened Ocean

EUREKA, Cal., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Jorgen M. Greve, first officer of the lumber schooner Brooklyn, which sank off Humboldt Bay Saturday with all hands lived today to tell how he drifted more than 70 hours on a bit of wreckage in a gale-maddened sea.

He was rescued yesterday by the crew of the fishing boat Two Sisters, five miles from shore, slightly north of the place where the Brooklyn sank. Greve was clinging grimly to wreckage and life, semi-conscious, bleeding from numerous cuts inflicted by the constant battering of angry seas and with his clothes in tatters. He was rushed to a hospital where physicians said he would live. He is the only known survivor of the crew of 18.

TELLS GRAPHIC STORY

Last night he revived sufficiently to tell a graphic story of the disaster and the agonizing hours that followed. He told of the mountainous waves striking the bow of the little schooner, making it impossible to steer. Something must have happened to the engine, then, he said. He related how the cook, a steward, a fireman and the engineer launched the one remaining lifeboat, but couldn't move it because of the water shipped.

The pilot house, then the superstructure, were torn away as gigantic seas swamped the vessel. He said:

"The next time the Brooklyn turned over, she came keel up. The men climbed the side and caught hold of the keel. I saw the skipper (Capt. T. J. Tufvesson) in the water and some of the men alongside of him. They looked glassy eyed."

Greve's three days adrift, without food or water, began when he swam to a piece of bulkhead torn from the Brooklyn. The story continued:

"I swam as far as I could from the wreckage. Later I found a piece of bulkhead, four feet wide and eight feet long with a beam six by six inches standing out two feet on each side. Then I took in two pieces of one by four-inch plank. I used them for paddles."

CURRENT THWARTS PADDLES

He said he was carried opposite Trinity Head, 20 miles from the scene of the wreck, Saturday night. He could see the lights flickering and "yelled until I thought my lungs would burst, but no one seemed to hear me."

Sunday at daybreak he was opposite the old whaling station at Trinity and summoned all his strength to paddle to shore only to be fought back by currents.

"I don't remember much else," he finished, exhausted.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, his wife, Mrs. Louise Greve, had refused to relinquish the idea that "the sea can't kill him." Twice before, she said, the sea had him and his boat in its grip, but he came away alive. In 1922 the schooner Cirlie Maloney crashed on rocks near Albion. The crew swam ashore while Greve waited through the night. With dawn, seeing the boat was fast and in peril of breaking up, he, too, swam to safety.

ARRANGE RITES FOR DU PONT

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Funeral services were to be announced today for Gen. T. Coleman du Pont, former senator from Delaware and one of America's foremost financiers. He died at his home here Tuesday after a long illness developing from a throat affection.

He was defeated in the election following his appointment, but he was elected to the Senate in 1925 for the six-year term. He served as a brigadier general of the Delaware National Guard under five governors.

Du Pont was married in 1889 while working in a Kentucky coal mine to a distant cousin, Alice du Pont. A son and three daughters were with Mrs. du Pont at his bedside when he died.

REVEAL FRENCH PORT AS DRUG RING CENTER

Marseilles Called Clearing House for Smugglers of Dope for World Trade

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
United Service.

MARSEILLES, Nov. 12.—Drugs in large and small quantities are being smuggled in and out of Marseilles today on nearly every steamer engaged in trade with ports of the Near and Far East.

A comparatively small and helpless force of government agents is fighting vainly in the unequal battle against the gigantic international ring dealing in illicit drugs.

During the past few months, tons of opium, heroin and cocaine have been seized on ships from the Black Sea, Eastern Mediterranean and Far East ports. A single Italian steamer, the Tadia, brought on its last voyage nearly a ton of narcotics which were seized by the authorities. Greek, French and British vessels are also freely used by smugglers.

ONLY PART CAUGHT

When it is realized that only a small part of the illicit shipments are seized, an idea is gained of the enormity of the dope traffic.

Meeting every effort of the authorities, the drug-runners are improving their methods as fast as their old tricks are discovered. Only recently police encountered a new method of shipment whereby tons of drugs undoubtedly had already passed unknown through their lines.

A large consignment of olive oil in iron barrels arrived from the East. As the principal port of the Western Mediterranean, Marseilles had received many such shipments previously. But in this case, tipped by an informant, the police made a special examination.

Investigation disclosed that each barrel contained an ingenious receptacle for transporting drugs—a liquid-proof container resting securely in the center of each barrel, supported by four rods which apparntly were part of the barrel's structure. The ordinary examination, for false bottoms and such, could never have uncovered the trick. Hundreds of pounds must have been smuggled this way, authorities said, before it was discovered.

USE COSTLY CIGARS

Another smuggler trick is to use real and expensive Havana cigars, since the tricksters thought customs officials would be slow to suspect the expensive brands of harboring illicit narcotics. Nevertheless, a thorough inspector found a broken cigar which contained a tube filled with drugs.

Ship captains can do little except report their suspicions to customs investigators. His only recourse is to report mysterious cargo to the authorities when the cargo reaches its destination.

Sailors of all nationalities crowd Marseilles every day, and among them are sprinkled the so-called "dock rats" of the city who, to gain the status of workers, make three or four voyages yearly to escape imprisonment as vagabonds.

'RACKETS' ARE ACTIVE

These "dock rats" are active in the smuggling trade. Although each can carry only a small quantity, the total amount of drugs they smuggle reaches an appalling figure. They, like American gangs, have their "racket," and their power and influence.

Narcotic running, like American bootlegging, makes for large profits, and there are always large sums of money for distribution where they will do the most good in obtaining "protection." These increased "costs of distribution" are easily met by raising prices to the ultimate, unfortunate consumer—the victim of the dope he uses.

GIRL KIDNAPED, '3-X' BLAMED

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(INS.)—Police are searching for a tall masked man who stuck a pistol in the side of Joseph Luisi, parked on a lonely road in the suburbs, and drove off with Luisi's car, his pretty red-haired girl and his $7.

The police had few clues—and did not even know the girl's name. Luisi said he had picked her up and driven about for a short time, but before they got to the point of exchanging names the masked man appeared.

Luisi saw his face in his mirror and remembered the 3-X murderer who terrorized that very section last summer, and tried to drive off. The man leaped on the running-board and ordered him out. The girl he told to stay in the car. Luisi said the last he saw of the robber he was driving off with the screaming girl in the seat beside him.

It was believed the same man had robbed another parked couple earlier and driven off with a car which he abandoned. In this case the man saved the girl by pleading eloquently that they were engaged to be married.

BELIEVES SON WAS SLAIN

John F. Eckendorfer, Sr., of 4713 Yew street, believes that his son, John F. Eckendorfer, Jr., 28, who died of a skull fracture Monday, was not injured in an automobile accident, but was beaten by gangsters, according to a statement made to Coroner W. J. McGregor today.

The father told Coroner McGregor that several young men had called at the Eckendorfer home October 5, and that they told young Eckendorfer, who is a pianist, that they wanted him to play in an orchestra.

Later that evening, several young men took him to the West Penn Hospital, where it was found he had a skull injury, which caused his death Monday.

Homicide Sergt. Samuel Wheeler was reported investigating reports that Eckendorfer was killed in reprisal for the shooting of Anne Dredwick, of Suismon street, during a Halloween celebration in a roadhouse in Evergreen road.

The girl died several days after she was shot. Eckendorfer was held to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of murder, but was later exonerated.

Famous Financial District Eating House Closed

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—After helping to feed workers in the financial district for 30 years, the S. M. Robins Company restaurant at 54 Broad street has failed to open its doors.

No explanation was given. Waiters and other employes arrived to find the grating in front of the doors padlocked. Robert Benedict, the manager would not be interviewed. The founder, S. M. Robins, died 35 years ago. One worker said:

"I don't know why it is closed. I do know that since the last crash in the street there haven't been so many patrons. Lately people have been getting just a cup of coffee for lunch."

SINKING HOMES ABANDONED

Two Bridgeville houses today were abandoned as workmen were prepared to adopt means that would prevent the dwellings from sinking further into an abandoned mine in Chestnut street. The houses, which sank three feet each within two days, were owned by John Crum, at 673 Chestnut street, and Jack Miller, at 667 Chestnut street. The mine, which was abandoned about a year ago, was owned by Crum.

The dwellings started sinking suddenly on Sunday afternoon, the rear walls of both dropping more than two feet within a few hours. Further dropping was noted over night. The ground was cracked a distance of 100 feet from the houses.

Part of Chinese Great Wall Found

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—What appears to be another section of the "Great Wall of China" has been discovered in the Gobi Desert by the Sven Hedin expedition, its leader informed the newspaper Dagens Nyheter by telegram today. It is in the neighborhood of the River Etsingol, north of Kinta, the message said, and is well preserved for several hundred yards. Its construction and materials appear to date in the Han dynasty.

2 PRIESTS TALK ON MODERNISM

Discussing "The Divinity of Christ—Fundamentalism or Modernism? two fathers of the New York Apostolate spoke last night in St. James church, Wilkinsburg, to a large crowd. The lectures, in their second week, are attracting a number of non-Catholics, according to Msgr. Stephan Walsh, pastor.

The Rev. John L. Kenney, who gave the talk, said the Divinity of Christ was the foundation and aim of the church. Denial of the Divinity meant the impossible assertion, he said, that Christ was either a liar or an idiot. The Rev. Cornelius J. Drew answered questions. The subject tonight will be "Government of the Church, Spiritual or Political?"

Shell Invades City, 'Gas' War Looms

Possibility of a "gasoline war" was seen today in the announcement that the Shell Oil Company is to enter the retail gasoline and oil field here, in competition with the Gulf, Atlantic and other established firms.

The first service station of the Shell company is to be erected at Fifth avenue and Tunnel street, where workmen are tearing down two old buildings to make room for it.

It was said that other Shell stations would be constructed in various parts of the city.

SAYS MATE WAS READY TO SKIP

Mrs. Elsie Mikolite, 31, testified in Morals Court today that her husband, Otto, 28, moved a truck up to their house in Continental street last night and announced that he was going to remove the furniture and go back to Germany.

Mrs. Mikolite, mother of two children, aged 2 and 1, had her husband arrested.

Mikolite denied the accusation. He admitted he had planned to move, but insisted he intended to take along his wife and children. He contended his wife was jealous.

Magistrate Thomas D. Jones turned the case over to social workers.

SEEK SUICIDE'S BODY IN RIVER

The Ohio River, near the Point Bridge, was being dragged today by River Patrolman Charles Snyder for the body of an unidentified man who leaped from the span in view of two pedestrians last night.

The man, about 35, dressed in a gray overcoat, climbed the railing and jumped into the stream just as Neal Splane, of 216 Sweetbriar street, and E. G. McCormick, of 453 Hallock street, made a vain attempt to hold him, police reported.

CHURCH DROPS NIGHT SERVICE

One of Pittsburgh's largest churches, Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, Center and Liberty avenues, has discontinued Sunday evening services and other large congregations are giving the subject serious consideration.

Christ Church is probably the first large church in the Pittsburgh district to eliminate the Sunday night service. The Rev. Dr. Albert E. Day, pastor, said he is pleased with the result, since the action of the church trustees in adopting a new program meets a new situation. He finds larger crowds attending the morning service and says there is more vigor and fervor to the gatherings.

The only service held in the church Sunday nights is the Young Peoples Society meeting, which gathers in the church parlors.

Three East End churches, the Asbury M. E. Church, Sixth Presbyterian and the Third United Presbyterian have joined in a union service to meet the Sunday night problem.

Sun-Telegraph Doll Lady Welcomed to Pittsburgh

Dear Little Girls:

I am proud of the welcome I have been given from the little girls of Pittsburgh and vicinity. It seems that every little girl in this big city wants to get "Tickletoes"—my wonder doll—as a playmate. And I'm not a bit surprised because when I first discovered "Tickletoes" I said to myself, "There's a big doll, a different doll, that every child will love." It has just like a sister. In the first place she's beautifully dressed, she's flexible—that is you can bend her any way you want. "Tickletoes" has three voices. Her legs are of durable rubber. Pinch the right leg and you hear one voice, pinch the other and you hear the second voice; lay her down and she crys, roll her over and she goes to sleep. She can clasp her hands, suck her thumb, has life-like toes and fingers, she's unbreakable and just about as big a dolly as you would want to take care of. My "Tickletoes" is always happy, smiling and bright-eyed.

Afternoon Dresses
In the Individual Manner

All women's ideas of formal afternoon dresses are not the same, of course. . . . One may like a simple dress of sheer crepe roma or chiffon, another prefer a "four-to-midnight" frock of chiffon and lace, and still another to be grande dame in sheer metallic cloth.

. . . Some will wear black as the most effective background for their charms, while others will choose purple-ink, sapphire blue, one of the deep, dark browns, or a lovely shade of green.

WRIT HOLDS UP SALES FOR TAX

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—A preliminary injunction has been granted by Judge A. H. Sayers against Frank B. Hill, Greene County treasurer, blocking the sale of several properties for 1929 taxes until after a court hearing Friday.

Injunction proceedings were brought by several taxpayers, who attack the loyalty of sale of property for delinquent taxes. They contend that the state 1929 tax act is contrary to the state constitution and also to the Fourteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution. The action was taken to create a test case.

Faith in Immunity Of Home Brew Brings Fine

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—Declaring he understood through newspapers that Federal agents would not molest him if he manufactured beer and wine for his own use, Andy Krupinsky, 40, of Allenbury, made some. He landed in the County Court and was fined $100 and costs.

TRIES SUICIDE THRICE, FAILS

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Leon Starr, 50, a teacher of Hebrew, made three attempts to commit suicide and the best he could do was to land in a hospital a nervous wreck.

First he threw himself in front of an automobile but the brakes worked too well and the machine stopped just short of him.

A few minutes later he tried the same method with a street car. The motorman, however, had to stop the car to throw a switch a few feet before reaching Starr.

The third attempt brought slightly better results, for Starr again tried his luck with an automobile and this time the machine did strike him.

Mascot's Stuffed Body Carried in Vets' Parade

UHRICHSVILLE, Nov. 12.—"Bing," bulldog mascot of Company D, One Hundred and Thirty-sixth Machine Battalion, which had to be chloroformed last June because of illness caused by gas overseas, lived again yesterday in the hearts of his soldiers.

His stuffed body was mounted on an automobile in the line of march of 200 ex-service men.

SALVATIONISTS SET AGE LIMIT

LONDON, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Generals of the Salvation Army hereafter will be retired automatically at the age of 70, the 42 Army commissioners in session here decided after the most vigorously debated meeting of the conference.

One faction, it was reported, held out for 75 years as the age of retirement but capitulated to a majority. Gen. Edward J. Higgins, head of the Army, required all the delegates to refrain from discussing the meeting for publication.

In an official announcement, however, he explained that new retirement limit will be applied to women as well as men, and that the rank of general is the only one in which a retirement age does not already apply.

Commander Evangeline Booth, as spokesman for the United States contingent, outlined her policies for regulation of the Army's internal affairs, but the policy of secrecy prevented any of the details reaching the public.

Ohio Woman Wins $350 Verdict Here

Mrs. Maude R. Foster, of Cuyahoga Falls, O., was awarded a verdict of $350 by a jury in Federal Court in a damage suit she brought against A. T. Arb, of Parmasus. The case, heard before Judge R. M. Gibson, grew out of a collision in New Kensington between an automobile in which Mrs. Foster was a passenger and a truck owned by the defendant. Mrs. Foster was cut by glass and suffered other injuries, it was testified.

VET, 91, OLDEST PRINTER, DIES

PEKIN, Ill., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Col. William Henry Bates, 91, a Civil War veteran, believed here to be the oldest active printer in the United States, died at his home yesterday after a paralytic stroke.

Col. Bates at various times owned and published weekly and daily papers in Pekin.

A member of Company C, 8th Missouri Infantry, he issued the first Union half-sheet newspaper in the Confederacy, the "Star-Spangled Banner," published at Mexico, Mo., in 1861. He was one of the founders of the Union League, organized to counteract activities of the Knights of the Golden Circle (Confederate) during and after the Civil War.

The LOUDSPEAKER

"Canned" Music, Hurts Musicians. | Boon to Broadway, "Bolero" Popular.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—Recorded music is threatening the livelihood of radio musicians as broadcasting stations throughout the country continue to give more time to disc programs.

Louis Reid

The problem of how best to adapt themselves to the disc's invasion of the dials is the most serious one now confronting members of studio bands. Frankly, they have no solution. Nor has the Federation of Musicians, though the latter is busy with advertisements protesting in a vein of ridicule against the rise of recorded music.

The telephone system, too, is deeply concerned as recorded programs constitute a genuine menace to their network of wires. Broadcasts of canned music can be purchased much more cheaply than those in which musicians are actually taking part—a factor that is already appealing to sponsors of commercial hours.

The ease, too, with which recorded programs can be made—canned program men recently captured Carol, the vagabond king and President Miklas of Austria, geographically inaccessible to date, to the air waves—also has its attraction to those who hold the broadcasting purse strings.

Key Stations Refuse Recorded Programs

The key stations of the networks, located in New York, refuse to broadcast recorded programs, but the networks cannot control their individual members which may desire to air them. Since the Radio Commission compels all broadcasters to announce specifically every recorded program, the network titans believe that the armchairs psychologically do not and will not have as great an interest in recorded music and voices as in those broadcasts that are being created right before them.

I wonder. The average listener is not able to detect the difference between a program that is recorded and one that is not. Nor, it seems to me, is he vitally interested whether a program is canned or not so long as something that pleases him tumbles out of his loudspeaker. If he must choose between Carol and a studio orchestra playing the "Peer Gynt Suite" for the thousandth time it is our notion he will take Carol even though he knows the Balkan bad boy is coming to him on a disc.

* * *

With the amazing growth of recorded programs a new boon to Broadway is predicted. There are those who declare Broadway will regain its old place in the sun, now usurped by Hollywood, as the ultimate goal of the artist. To fill the demand for disc entertainment on 600 odd radio stations, artists will flock to Broadway, it is said, as they have not flocked since it was conquered by the movies.

Willard Robison, musical historian of the deep south, recently asked his radio musicians their opinion of the future of their profession. The majority of them replied that while they thought their own livelihood was safe enough, not one would make a professional musician of his son. Several frankly feared the growing use of recorded programs could eventually cut down the demand for radio musicians.

While restaurants and hotels would employ orchestras for some time, they believed, a few standard orchestras would record all the musical radio programs of the future in a central studio whence they would be distributed to radio stations all over the country.

Bands Concerned With 'Bolero'

The larger symphony bands are finding it more and more difficult to remove Ravel's "Bolero" from their music racks. "Bolero" is not a work that can stand much repetition. Played for the first time last winter by Toscanini and the Philharmonic and played with a sweep and swing that has not been equaled since, it is now a favorite of every pretentious baton in the land.

The program annotator of the Philadelphia Orchestra bluntly calls the musical hot tamale "as common as mud." It is its repetition that is making it common.

The melody men in their eternal tribute to rivers have finally got around to, as of course, they would sooner or later, "God's River." By Thomas Albin, it is, as its name suggests, a spiritual Dialect comedy, save that labelled German, Jewish and Negro, is not represented often on the air. Amos 'n' Andy, of course, are the foremost exponents of Negro dialect, while Weber and Fields uphold German traditions. Jewish dialect on the radio is confined almost entirely to the sketch, "The Rise of the Goldbergs." English, Scotch, French, Italian dialects, even Irish, the standby of much stage comedy, rarely penetrates the loudspeakers.

Hoover More Active Than Ever on Radio

With election over President Hoover, strangely, is more active microphonically than ever.

His record on the radio already surpasses that of the good Calvin. And the sage of Northampton was heard more than 40 times during his administration.

The one unwritten law of radio concerns the President. He is privileged to take the air any time he pleases, and all local and network broadcasts must give way.

The GENERAL TIRE
Ride On the Tire That Runs On Less Air

25 Bull's-eyes in this Issue!

Notably...

5,000 pesos are on his head, dead or alive! He laughs in the moonlight as he robs the rich and protects the poor... Ride, thrill with El Coyote, mysterious bandit of the Mexican border. Meet the lovely Adela Morales who has a liking for American football heroes.

It's all in "The Gay Bandit of the Border," a romantic novel of the real West. This is Tom Gill's first novel, and when Cosmopolitan publishes a "first" that means something.

The earth trembled, panthers squalled in the brake like babies and the Mississippi ran upstream a thousand miles, on the night John Henry was born. What a Man! Roark Bradford, upon whose Negro stories Marc Connelly based his fine play, "The Green Pastures," tells these tales of John Henry's prodigious exploits, beginning in December Cosmopolitan.

W. Somerset Maugham, who wrote "Rain" and "The Painted Veil," knows more of what goes on in a woman's heart than women do themselves. December Cosmopolitan gives you, in "The Human Element," the first of a group of long complete stories by Maugham.

RUPERT HUGHES is just getting under way with his new Cosmopolitan serial, "No One Man." In the December installment, false names on the hotel register get an extremely modern couple into a difficult situation.

MEREDITH NICHOLSON, in "Moonlight on the Susquehanna," takes you on an adventure in romance that has all the charm and mystery of his "The House of a Thousand Candles."

REX BEACH, in "Tiger-snake," tells of two white men and a white girl in the Malay jungle. It is a grim love triangle in which you are bound to take sides.

JOHN ERSKINE, in "The Private Life of Pocahontas," gives us an inside view of her relations with Captain John Smith.

BENITO MUSSOLINI says frankly in this issue that Italy must expand and be willing to pay the price of expansion. This article shows why he has all Europe worried.

KARL K. KITCHEN describes his visit to a colony of men and women in Germany who don't believe in clothes.

The WIFE of a powerful WALL STREET BROKER tells what the crash did to her—a modern real-life tragedy with a rainbow at the end.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Radio Editor.

"Not what we give, but what we share
For the gift without the giver is bare;
Who gives himself with his alms feeds three—
—Poem of Sir Launfal.

"Teamwork for Humanity" is the slogan of Pittsburgh-Allegheny County's Welfare Fund campaign which gets under way tonight with a splurge of theatrical talent over KDKA, WCAE and WJAS. Dick Powell, Ed Lowry, Cross and Healy, units of the Penn, Stanley and Enright Theaters and acts from Joe Hiller's Show Boat are booked to furnish a bright evening between 11 and midnight. There is to be very little talk of the Welfare Fund, but listeners are to be asked to give as liberally as they can to the cause. To give more than money—to give in the spirit of humanity.

Darrell V. Martin

Imagine yourself in a country garden—a summer night—when Olive Palmer sings "The Glow Worm" on WCAE at 9:30.

The evening is replete with other delicacies. For instance, the recording of "Merry Widow Waltz," under Franz Lehar, made in Vienna, on KDKA at 10:30; Beethoven's Choral Symphony for 10:30 WJAS listeners; Billy Hughes singing "Three Little Words" on KDKA at 9:30 and the Mobiloil presentation of "African Scenes," WCAE, 8:30.

Herb McGee and Fred Webber sound so much alike that Fred recently carried on a telephone conversation with Herb's sister without being detected. Herb then turned the tables by talking over the phone to Fred's wife for many minutes while Mrs. Webber thought she was being answered by her dear hubby.

WELL!

From Charles D. Wettach, chairman of the Athletic Council, University of Pittsburgh:

Dear Mr. Martin:

May I reply to A. E. B. "Whose Stadium?" letter which appeared recently in "We Now Present?"

The University of Pittsburgh Stadium was financed through a bond issue and built for the purpose of Pitt athletic events—football especially. The Pitt football team receiving invitations to play in various cities, the Athletic Council of the University of Pittsburgh made a mutual agreement with the Athletic Department of Carnegie Institute of Technology for playing in the Pitt Stadium when not used by Pitt, and the schedule of both institutions during the last two years has been arranged on this basis.

The name of the Stadium is the "University of Pittsburgh Stadium" with the Athletic Council of the University in full charge.

It was perfectly proper for Mr. Husing in broadcasting the Pitt-Notre Dame game to use the name "Pitt Stadium."

Also letters from W. D. Harrison, director of athletics, University of Pittsburgh, and several bond holders who want us to know it's the "University of Pittsburgh Stadium."

JENNY... eminent creator of Paris fashions says:

"The sheerest lingerie is safe if laundered with Palmolive Beads"

Agreeing with the Committee of 17 . . . Jenny and 32 famous French designers declare Palmolive Beads "Ideal for washing fine fabrics"

JENNY! The name calls up visions of garmentries of chic and elegance.

Mme. Jenny has the rare distinction of having been awarded the ribbon of the Legion d'Honneur, in recognition of her "eminent services" in the creation and inspiration of a French art.

Her name ranks among the real leaders of the great French dressmaking houses. In her workrooms are silks and chiffons worth thousands of dollars. Lingerie—fine as sheer veiling! Laces of incomparable beauty.

You may be sure Jenny has given the most serious attention to the care of these exquisite garments . . . and especially to their proper cleansing. She says:

"Lingerie safe if washed with Palmolive Beads"

"Coarse, harsh soaps—scalding hot water—bits of soap left after washing—all these are fatal risks for delicate fabrics.

"But the sheerest lingerie is safe if laundered with Palmolive Beads. They dissolve completely in lukewarm or cool water, and leave no soap to dry in the fabric and rot or break the threads.

"I recommend Palmolive Beads for washing even the daintiest lingerie and sheerest fabrics."

So different from other soaps

Many women are unable to believe a soap can be radically different from all others. Madam—we ask you to try just one box of Palmolive Beads, if that is your view!

Palmolive Beads are really beads of soap . . . hollow . . . tissue thin. They dissolved at 80 to 83 degrees, the safe temperature for washing fine silks . . . and full 20 degrees lower than most soaps require.

Palmolive Beads are made of olive and palm oils. For more than 40 years silk makers have trusted their precious skeins to no other type of soap. It is the finest you could use. And never before available for everyone. Try Palmolive Beads today. Begin now to give your delicate garments the care they should have. Your dealer has Palmolive Beads.

Famous Silk Manufacturers unite with Committee of 17 in endorsing Palmolive Beads

CHENEY — LUXITE
CORTICELLI — PHOENIX
HOLEPROOF — STEHLI
KAYSER — VANITY FAIR
VAN RAALTE

MME. JENNY, whose rare instinct for chic has made her a leader among great French dressmaking houses.

DICK POWELL — CHARLOTTE SHALLENBERGER

way or that at Fourth and Market, has been dubbed "The Singing Cop" at KQV where he reports in uniform daily (when off duty) to help the boys answer mail and to fill in with 10 or 15 minutes of tenoresque.

QUESTION A DAY:

Fred C. Widamy, of 3921 Riddle street, Pittsburgh's champion DX fan, logged his five hundredth station Saturday night when he picked up XED at Renosa, Mexico. Several other Pittsburghers have had this station recently in its endurance contest.

BEST LAST NIGHT:

That 15-minute oriental sketch by Snoop and Peep over WCAE. These singing detectives are to solve the "Shooting of Dan McGrew" next Tuesday. A—ha! Very clever patter.

Use of the expression "Human Filling Station" by Amos 'n' Andy in deciding a name for their restaurant was brought about through the suggestion of the sponsor of Sacred Songs here.

* * *

In her travels through Florida last winter the Sponsor's attention was attracted to a dilapidated restaurant bearing the shingle "Human Filling Station." She passed the idea on to Amos 'n' Andy when they were here for the KDKA celebration.

TODAY'S TID BIT:

A Baltimore fan thought Jack and Tony's program good enough recently to spend $6.80 to tell them about it. We congratulate Jack and Tony today on the first anniversary of the "Blues Chaser" program. Some idea of their popularity may be gained from the fact that they have received 60,000 pieces of fan mail—including apples, neckties, flowers, cakes—since January of this year. The boys are good!

CHESTERTON TO TALK TUESDAY

Gilbert K. Chesterton, noted English essayist and master of the paradox in both writing and speech, will speak here Tuesday evening at Soldiers' Memorial hall under the sponsorship of Duquesne University. The author is making an American lecture tour and the Rev. Dr. James F. Carroll, vice president of Duquesne, has obtained a special lecture for the university next week.

"The Inhumanity of Humanism," a typically paradoxical subject, will be discussed by Chesterton here. All literary groups and campus organizations at Duquesne are combining to attend the lecture along with faculty members, alumni and student body.

LANG ORDERS N. S. DETOUR

Director Edward G. Lang, of the Public Works Department, has announced that all vehicular traffic will be barred from California avenue at Superior avenue, North Side, next week in order that the completion of the intersection of the Ohio River boulevard and California avenue may be expedited. It is suggested that all vehicular traffic entering the city from the North Boroughs use Brighton road, or Shadeland avenue.

KONJOLA WENT RIGHT TO WORK

Former Sufferer Declares Modern Medicine Did More Good Than a Trip West for Health.

No wonder Konjola, the new and different medicine of 32 ingredients, is famous for its accomplishments, for all of Konjola's 32 ingredients work at once, and each has its mission to perform in combating the ills that Konjola is designed to relieve.

MR. WILLIAM CHARLTON

Would you see how Konjola works? Then read the grateful words of Mr. William Charlton, 12 Boston Street, this city, and then visit the Konjola Man at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh. Look into the amazing record this medicine has made in relieving ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, and rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness. But right now read what Mr. Charlton said to the Konjola Man:

"For six months I could not eat a thing without suffering from cramps and pain in my stomach. Pain kept me awake at night. I had catarrh, too, and had to go West for my health. While there I was better, but upon my return to Pittsburgh my old troubles returned. But four bottles of Konjola did me more good than the trip West. I shall use Konjola right along, and am telling all my friends about this wonderful medicine."

Konjola does work swiftly, yet it is best to take from six to eight bottles for best results.

The Konjola Man is at the Dow Drug Store, Penn Avenue and Sixth Street, Pittsburgh, where daily he is meeting the public and telling of Konjola and its works. Konjola is sold by all Dow Stores in Pittsburgh and vicinity.

When a Child is FEVERISH, CROSS, UPSET

Colic, gas, sour belching, frequent vomiting, feverishness, in babies and children, generally show food is pouring in the little digestive tract.

When these symptoms appear, give Baby a teaspoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Add it to the first bottle of food in the morning. Older children should be given a tablespoonful in a glass of water. This will comfort the child—make his stomach and bowels easy. In five minutes he is comfortable, happy. It will sweep the bowels free of all sour, indigestible food. It opens the bowels in constipation, colds, children's ailments. Children take it readily because it is palatable, pleasant-tasting.

Learn its many uses for mother and child. Write for the interesting book, "Useful Information." Address The Phillips Co., 170 Varick St., New York, N. Y. It will be sent FREE.

In buying, be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Doctors have prescribed it for over 50 years.

HOLLYWOOD AND GOTHAM IN REVIEW; LOCAL AMUSEMENT EVENTS

Paul Cavanaugh, English Actor, Wins Belated Recognition

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 11.

As belated recognition, Paul Cavanaugh, the English actor, has been signed for Gloria Swanson's leading man in "Rockabye."

When Cavanaugh came to Hollywood, Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer staged a tug of war over him, with the result that he signed for six months with each company.

As so often happens, the studios promptly forgot all about him, and he did no important work during the period of his contract.

Victor Varconi

It was in this picture that Miss Swanson and her director, Tay Garnett, saw him.

Several other names have been added to the cast of "Rockabye," including Victor Varconi and Maud Fulton.

HE APOLOGIZES

Before departing on a deer hunt, Charles Bickford promised to bring venison home to several friends at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

He got the deer, but on the way back his car caught fire and burned all his belongings.

"It's a little overdone," he apalogized.

I NOTE THAT—Elissa Landi, whom Fox lured from the cast of "Farewell to Arms," is writing a novel, her third. It's to be called "The Autobiography of a Middle-Aged Mother." As the actress is neither middle-aged nor a mother, it's all in the mind . . . Joe E. Brown arrived in town yesterday, carrying a market-basket on his arm. Inside was Mary Elizabeth Ann, born seven weeks ago in Chicago. There are two other young Browns, boys, aged 14 and 12. . . . Buster Keaton's repeated use of the name Elmer Butts in his pictures has brought a letter from a genuine Elmer Butts, who is director of the Harrison Cove Vocational School in Martinsburg, Pa. The communication was amicable. . . Greta Garbo keeps a copy of every "still" taken on her productions. The collection runs into thousands. . . . United Artists fire the first gun in their war agaist West Coast Theaters by booking "Whoopee" in a 1,200-seat independent theater in Alhambra, California. Both Al Jolson and Eddie Cantor will make personal appearances at the opening.

Greta Garbo

PRESS VINDICATED

Since the days of her romance with Jack Gilbert, Greta Garbo has viewed the press with horror and misgivings.

Recently she was thrown into a panic upon sighting a newspaper headline: "Garbo Scores Touchdown."

To her intense relief, it was not a reportorial atrocity, but an account of the exploit of a high school football star.

For downright meanness, I nominate the fellow who referred to me as the "motorman" of this column.

BELASCO PLAY COMES TO NIXON NEXT WEEK

David Belasco's "It's a Wise Child" will be the attraction in the Nixon next week. The original New York company will be featured here.

William A. Brady's production of "Street Scene" is current in the Alvin. The stories of many lives are interwoven in this living tapestry and the play is said to contain a charming romance in the love story of young Rose and the dreamer law student, Sam.

Pauline MacLean, former leading woman with the George Sharp Players in the Pitt, returns to that company next week. "Let Us Be Gay" will be the production.

City Asks Employes To Assist in Relief

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Nov. 12.—City Council has adopted a resolution requiring officials and employes of the city to donate one day's pay each month toward a fund for the care of the poor of the city. The fund will be distributed by a committee appointed by Mayor William H. Gillespie.

Mother and Child

"WHO'S THAT HORRID looking man? Oh, tell me quickly, maw. He's been throwing lots of paper all around the floor. How he scares me, mother darling, when he pulls his hair; watch him, mother, watch him, how he fidgets in his chair. Where's his collar, mother dearest, and his shirt and tie? Mother, look! Oh, mother, see that wild look in his eye! Do you think he's suffering, or do you think he's ill? Shall I phone the doctor, mother; shall I fetch a pill?" . . . "Hush, my darling, don't you cry; that man's your daddy, dear. He is busy colyuming, so do not have a fear. Come, my loved one, come away, before he starts to curse. Follow mother, baby darling, papa's making verse. Every day and night poor mamma has to read his jokes. Goodness knows, my loved one, I won't weep the day he chokes! Mamma's forced to grin or smile at things that daddy makes. Some of which he writes himself—and others that he takes! Daddy is a member of the leading paper's staff; he is writing paragraphs to make his readers laugh. Come, my sweetheart, come let mother wash your pretty face; papa must have quiet so that he can fill his space. Run along, my darling, and remember—make no noise—for daddy's writing poetry on 'How to Keep Your Poise!'"—Man About Town.

Add Sillies

One of her stay-up-late patrons was groaning to La Guinan how difficult it was for him to get sleep.

"Maybe you like your insomnia young?" kidded Broadway's best-known femme kidder, "why don't you try counting sheep?"

"Do you?" he asked.

"No," replied Texas, "I count elephants—I'm so near-sighted."

Form of Criticism

Take it from Neal O'Hara, who answered a magazine's query: "What is radio's greatest need?"

O'Hara snapped:

Observation

Far be it from this upstart to take it all too seriously, but it is to groan. When Lindbergh comes to the capital countless thousands risk pneumonia in the rain to ogle him.

The other day, however, when Rickenbacker, a World War ace, with many enemy planes to his credit, received a medal at the hands of the President, only 250 persons were present.

Why Ray Goetz Gray

Ray E. Goetz, sponsor of "Fifty Million Frenchmen," and now preparing "The New Yorkers," instructed his property man in Philadelphia to get six lorgnettes for the new show. Three hours later the property man returned dejected.

"Where are those lorgnettes?" asked Goetz.

Nifty

The Postal Telegraph Company's theater ticket service idea has inspired the gagsters, already. The Telegraph offers this: A woman playgoer ankled up to a box office treasurer and asked for two seats in the balcony.

For years they have been devoted to this beautifully white soap with its dainty fragrance. The Broadway stage stars and the European screen stars, too. Lux Toilet Soap is the official soap in all the great film studios—is in theatres everywhere!

Of the countless stars—all over the world—who use this white soap, some have the fine-grained skin that is inclined to dryness; some the skin that tends to be oily; some the in-between skin . . .

Whatever your individual type may be, you, too, will find Lux Toilet Soap the perfect soap—so neutral, so bland is its effect on the skin.

You can keep your skin as temptingly youthful as the famous stars'. You can use the same complexion care as they!

Smooth Skin means Youth!

JANET GAYNOR Fox: "It's as caressing as costly French soaps."

Long ago the fascinating screen stars learned the secret of youthful charm. They found that it is largely a matter of smooth glowing skin . . . that looking young depends on wise complexion care.

Thank You!

Ed Lowry plans to show appreciation for the way Pittsburgh audiences have received him by presenting a show, titled "Thank You," in the Stanley, beginning Friday.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

lang's for those, madam," he politely replied.

"All right, then," she responded, "how about two in the orchestra?"

"Sorry, but you'll have to go to the Postal Telegraph for those."

"What on earth do you do?" she snapped.

Gosh, Yes!

Izzy Elinson entitles it "Embarrassing Moment"—when a critic will want to send a review of a play via Postal Telegraph saying a show that the Postal is handling is terrible.

A Ripley

Her initials are J. L. The legend has it that her mammy told her that her pappy died when she was an infant. Three years ago when she appeared in one of Mr. Carroll's "Vanities" a man called back stage and invited her out. She accepted his orchids and invitation to step. They went to a night club to sup and sip, and after a dance or two he asked her to roll down the stocking on her left leg.

"I want to see if you have a mole below your knee," he said.

The startled gal waited to catch her breath, and said:

"How do you know that?"

When she revealed the mole he told her he was her father, and later he proved it.

She hasn't appeared in a show since, accepting his bargain of $100 weekly for life if she would shelve the stage.

Add Merciless Truths

Lou Holtz is said to be writing a new ditty entitled: "Don't Blame Your Wife's Relations. Remember You Selected Them."

Imagine

Con Conrad, the songwriter, was still moaning about it last night. Last summer Lew Seiler, a Fox flicker director, urged Conrad to sleep in the same house with him one night near Venice, Cal. "I can buy the house for $12,000," said the director, "and I want to see if I like it."

Conrad agreed, but complained of the chug-chug-chug of a machine across the way. "That's awful," said Con. "You'll never sleep comfortably with that incessant chug-chug-chug." Seiler decided not to purchase the house.

That dwelling is now worth a million dollars. The chug-chug-chug across the way, it appears, was a drill, which discovered oil on the surrounding property—to the tune of 200,000,000 gallons last summer.

Simile

Quicker than Floyd Gibbons can say Jack Robinson.

Raising Kane

Jeanne Kane, 18-year-old daughter of Hugh Kane, managing editor of the Sunday Cleveland News, was mussed up rather badly recently in a motor crash. For a few days it appeared that it would be necessary for her face to undergo a bit of plastic surgery. The surgeon remarked, within her hearing, that he would like a photograph of Jeanne.

"Don't give him one of mine," nifties the lassie, "give him one of Billie Dove."

Sotto Voce

Norman Bel Geddes: The line in question was not aimed at all the opponents, but at one class. You owe me five.

Martin Flavin: Punch continues for the fun of it. I suppose, not for you.

Daniel Winslow: Your value doesn't jell, sir.

Quiteso, Quiteso

That speakeasy on Fifty-fifth street which features wisecracks on the wall over the bar offsets, among other nifties: "A pedestrian is a girl who doesn't neck."

Or Benefits

Hehehah

Police Begin Disbursing Relief to City's Needy

W. & J. FAN KILLED AS AUTO UPSETS

SIDEWALKS —of— PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

Pat Hines, a young Irishman of Pittsburgh, with the 319th Infantry, was just one of the hundreds of doughboys placed in a precarious position when a Jerry flew low over them as they marched toward the front. The enemy flier opened up a rain of lead as he flew back and forth above the ranks of the 319th. Naturally the bullets terrorized some of the boys, but a lot of them had to laugh when Hines, losing his temper, shouted defiantly at the aviator:

"You dirty hla'-guard! Am I the only one you can see down here?"

The 80th was making one of those long hikes with cruel packs and in the terrific heat of mid-summer. Hines was a liaison man, instructed to keep the various units informed of the route. One of the "dumb" officers, who rode a horse in front of the long lines, had managed to get the 80th on the wrong road once or twice and of course this made plenty of work for Pat; he was compelled to rush from the front to the rear of the ranks to change the marching orders. Finally, after the "dumb" one on the horse had made a second bad move, Pat staggered back, almost smothered in perspiration. As he reached the rear, he panted:

Gen. Cronkite, of the 80th, laughs at this one, but when it was sprung he didn't smile.

His division had tramped for days, or rather nights, moving toward the front. Most of the infantry movements were made in the cover of darkness to frustrate the enemy aviators. The Blue Ridgers were nearing the front on a certain black, wet night.

The general became ill and when the troops reached the nearest town, he was placed in a billet for treatment. Meantime some of his soldiers were carrying on in such a manner he could not rest. Eventually he pushed his head out into the darkness. He could see nobody, none could see him, but all heard that resonant—

"Cut out that noise down there."

"Who the h- -l are you?" rang the fresh retort of an unseen soldier.

"What's that?" roared the general in anger, and then, "This is Cronkhite!"

"Is that so? Well, I'm Pershing. Come on down here!"

Negro troops naturally furnished some of the most humorous sidelights on the war. Most of them were good soldiers, but every now and then an Amos or Andy popped up.

A detachment of Negro infantry was marching toward the front, but it was still a few kilometers away when a shell fell almost a mile ahead. The rookies could see the dust the shell kicked up and they may have smelled a little powder. The fright of a few was apparent.

"What you-all gwine t' do if dem Germans start to tossin' things down heah, Henry?" asked one trooper of his buddie.

"Boy, I'se gwine spread th' news through Western France," replied Henry.

Some of the colored troops were used in the labor battalions that kept the roads near the front in good order. Enemy shells made direct hits on many important thoroughfares and the allies had to repair the job as quickly as possible.

A trench-weary outfit was being taken from the front lines. As the men reached a good road a few miles back, they encountered one of the Negro squads. Many of the members were singing, as they broke up the stones that were to be put into the road. A cold rain fell, but the sounds of the singing seemed to cheer up the doughboys. Some of them stopped to listen to a big fellow with a bass voice who ceased singing when he saw he had an audience.

The darkey laughed and then remarked as he went to work on the stones:

"Man, I had a good voice for singin' befoh Uncle Sam done put me out in de rain."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Nov. 12.

President Hoover spoke Monday before the Advertisers' convention. He doesn't any more than get through talking to one organization than some other one comes along. This country sure is organized and this country sure is advertised. When we arrive at the poor house we will be the best organized and the best advertised nation that was ever admitted. In fact it's paying dues to organizations and advertising that will put us there. One of our big stars must be coming out with a new picture There is a big movie fight on.

OFFICERS GIVE DAY'S PAY TO AID POOR

150 Baskets Sent Out to Relieve Needy; Ten Days' Supplies Provided Each

Distribution of food, clothing and coal under auspices of the Police Relief Committee, was well under way today, with baskets and supplies being delivered to homes of the destitute and need by Sun-Telegraph and city trucks.

Headquarters have been opened in the McGeagh building, 607 Webster avenue, where so far more than 150 baskets of edibles and supplies have been sorted, packed and distributed under supervision of officials of the Fraternal Order of Police and volunteers from the ranks of the city bluecoats.

CITY LEADERS CONTRIBUTE

The fund has been made possible by the co-operation of each police officer in contributing one day's pay, donations from public-spirited citizens, and a gift from Fort Pitt Lodge No. 1, Fraternal Order of Police. So far more than $2,000 worth of supplies have been purchased and distributed.

The police relief committee will function as long as necessary, according to Harry C. Hyer, secretary. No worthy case reported will be turned down, he said.

The system used, he pointed out, is investigation by officers on beats or by application in person to any police station and requesting relief cards. Mayor Charles H. Kline, Director James M. Clark, of the Department of Public Safety, and Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh, have indorsed the plan and have contributed as members of the police relief committee.

10 DAYS' SUPPLY

Discussing the workings of the plan Hyer said:

"Families given relief will be kept on our official lists. If within 10 days following the donation of food and clothing no charitable organization has taken up the matter, we will investigate again and accord similar help. Each basket contains enough food for 10 days. Clothing, shoes and overcoats are also distributed."

Those comprising the committee are Mayor Charles H. Kline, Police Supt. Walsh, Public Safety Director James M. Clark, and Asst. Police Supt. Benjamin Marshall, honorary members, and Charles C. Crummer, general chairman; John B. Fogarty, Harry C. Hyer, P. J. McCullough, Lieut. Philip J. Kumpf, Sergt. Morgan O'Brien, Chief Clerk William Miller and the eight city police inspectors.

G. H. Allen, vice president, and chairman of the party, is assisted in his arrangements by George G. Semans, C. C. Loder, H. G. Hamilton, Frank Kelton, W. J. Klapper, R. G. Volkwein, Paul K. Collins, F. A. W Lewin, H. W. Briggs, Frank Gregg, John R. Kumer, H. E. Nestlerode, W. A. Amaismeir, W. J. Shanes, H. N. Myers, L. E. Neeld, Harry Kramer and J. F. McMorris.

BUILDING-LOAN LEAGUE MEET OPENS HERE

Taxation of Home Owner Will Be Discussed at Two-Day Session; Dinner Tonight

With methods of giving better service to the home and property owners of America stressed as the keynote, the quarterly meeting of officers and directors of the United States Building and Loan League opened today in Hotel William Penn.

A number of other important topics are to come up for discussion and action during the two-day get-together. These include taxation of the home owner, relief for unemployment through home modernization and consideration of the general building and loan condition in the United States and particularly in Eastern Pennsylvania.

DINNER TONIGHT

Plans will be made also for the international building and loan conference to be held in Philadelphia next August.

Delegates to the meetings will be guests of the Allegheny County Building and Loan Associations at a dinner tonight in Hotel William Penn.

R. Holtby Myers, of Los Angeles, Cal., president of the league, will speak. Robert T. Houlden will be toastmaster. Inspection of a number of industrial plants was on the program for this afternoon.

OFFICERS HERE

Tonight's banquet will be the seventh annual of the Allegheny association.

National officers of the League attending the meeting include, besides President Myers, William E. Best, of Pittsburgh, first vice president; Ward B. Whitlock, Springfield, Ill., second vice president; H. F. Cellarius, Cincinnati, O., secretary-treasurer, and H. Morton Bodfish, Chicago, Ill., executive manager.

JOBLESS FOOD CONTRACTS LET

The contract for furnishing food to the needy under the city's $100,000 emergency appropriation today was awarded to the Retail Grocers' Association representing 200 member grocers. The only other bidder was the Kroger Grocery Company. The Atlantic and Pacific company, temporarily furnishing orders, did not bid. The bid was on 50 varieties of foodstuffs and supplies from the general list used by the Red Cross in disaster cases.

Six stores in various parts of the city will supply shoes, at cost plus 20 per cent for handling and fitting. The wholesale prices are: Men's, $2.60; boys', $2.90; girls', $2.10; women's, $2.90; infants', $1.15. The dealers are Frank & Seder, downtown; Book Shoe Store, East End; John Debald, South Side; Kuhl & Co., North Side; R. E. Graham, West End, and W. J. Crowley Company, Oakland.

B. L. Succop, director of supplies, who awarded the contracts, said that no contract had been entered into for coal. The Corliss Coal Company and the South Side Coal Company have been furnishing fuel at $4 per ton. Other dealers will be added later.

Davis Cites Cost of Wars In Money and Lives

The cost of war in money and lives was stressed by Senator-elect James J. Davis, speaking at the Armistice Day banquet sponsored by Burt Foster Post No. 361, American Legion, in the Penn-McKee Hotel, McKeesport, last night. He said in part:

"In the course of its history the United States has spent on wars $53,000,000,000, one-fourth of the total wealth of the country today.

"The Revolutionary War cost us $46,000,000. The War of 1812 cost us nearly $134,000,000. The Civil War cost nearly $14,000,000,000, including an interest bill of more than $3,000,000,000, and a pension bill of nearly $7,000,000,000. The Spanish-American War cost nearly $800,000,000, and the World War nearly $38,000,000,000.

"This was the money cost alone. In human terms the World War blasted the bodies or lives of 17,000,000 men throughout the Western world. It killed 50,000 Americans, and brought economic ruin to the whole of the civilized world. It set back civilization and progress. We have not yet fully recovered from its effects."

Oakland Streets, Lights Discussed

Extension and repaving of streets and an improved lighting system in the Oakland district were discussed at a meeting of the Oakland Board of Trade in the Schenley Hotel last night.

PASSION PLAY OPENS MONDAY

Depicting the last seven days of Christ's life, the Freiberg Passion Play, translated from the German and adopted to the American stage under the direction of David Belasco, will open its eight-performance engagement next Monday in the Syria Mosque.

The play is produced with the co-operation of 1,000 churches and is described as non-sectarian. Years of training has resulted in the perfection of the sincerity of the play, which has been the chief aim of Adolf Fassnacht, the Christus, who is at the head of the company.

To the Bible student each costume worn by the players tells a story, denoting the class and position of the wearer. The care of the oriental colored robes, many of which have taken years to complete, require the care of four tailors. The costumes blend with the historic settings and are designed to carry the observer back to the days of Jerusalem.

The helmet worn by the Pilate in his last appearance is a hand-carved museum piece. The armor worn by the soldiers are exact copies from the exhibits in the Louvre in Paris.

Tener Assists Elks at Mortgage Burning

Former Gov. John K. Tener, past exalted grand ruler, and President John F. Nugent, of the Pennsylvania Elks Association, will participate in the mortgage burning ceremonies of Pittsburgh Lodge No. 11, tonight in their Seventh street temple. An open house reception and entertainment will follow the ceremony.

MODEL COACH EXHIBIT HERE

The miniature Napoleonic coach, touring the country in connection with the $50,000 competition of the Fisher Body Craftsmanship Guild, has arrived in Pittsburgh and will be on display today from 2 to 6 p. m. in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. The exhibit has come to Pittsburgh under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph chapter of the body guild. Tonight from 7 to 10 o'clock it will be on display in the Schenley High School auditorium.

Tomorrow the coach will be exhibited at Schenley High School from 4 to 8 p. m. Boy and Girl Scouts all over the city have been especially invited to attend the exhibitions. Supt. of Schools Ben Graham, has issued an invitation to all school students to participate in the competition.

Those who have questions to ask about eligibility or about the actual work of reproducing the coach model should make doubly sure of being present, for they may put their inquiries to the crafts experts in charge of the display. Parents, manual training teachers and others interested are included in the Sun-Telegraph's invitation.

J. Reiner, who constructed coaches for the late Czar Nicholas, of Russia, and former Kaiser Wilhelm, of Germany, is in charge of the equipment.

Church Drive Nets 75 New Members

Sixty-five teams reported 75 new members for 12 churches of the North Boroughs last night at the first report meeting in the campaign of visitation envangelism under the direction of Dr. Guy H. Black, of Greencastle, Ind. Further reports will be presented tonight at the supper-meeting in the Bellevue Methodist Protestant Church. The campaign ends Friday.

Shippers to Discuss Rail Rate Cuts in West

Complaints of carriers against reduction in the Western trunk line class rates were discussed at a meeting of 30 shippers in the Chamber of Commerce this afternoon. The conference was called by Donald O. Moore, traffic manager of the chamber.

The railroads in their brief, already filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, declare rates should be fixed by the commission to develop the country as a whole, including the West, and assert the actual increase in revenues resulting from the prescribed readjustment will fall short of the amount intended by the commission.

FATAL CRASH FOLLOWS GRID GAME

Companion Escapes Injury; Seven Victims of Autos In Series of Accidents

Returning to his home from Clarksburg, W. Va., where he had attended a football game, Harry H. Shanks, 61, of 96 Kendall avenue, Bellevue, was killed last midnight when the automobile in which he was riding skidded and overturned on the Pittsburgh road near Washington, Pa. Dr C. L. McCullough of 341 Sherwood avenue, Pittsburgh, who was driving the m chir., escaped uninjured.

Both men are graduates of Washington and Jefferson College and had witnessed the college freshman team play the West Virginia University freshman team at Clarksburg. Both men are strong supporters of athletics at the college and Shanks was the first football manager of the institution.

Shanks graduated from the college in 1895, and was manager of the football team of 1894. He was employed by the Reliance Life Insurance Company and made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Aileen Smith.

PLUNGES 125-FT. BANK

Fogel Bishoff, 60, of 2311 Beechwood boulevard, was in the Braddock General Hospital today with a fractured left leg suffered when his automobile plunged over a 125-foot embankment off the Kennywood boulevard, after sideswiping another car late yesterday, according to police.

Police said the accident occurred when Bishoff failed to negotiate a curve and sideswiped a machine driven by S. A. Wilhelm, of Cherry Tree. Bishoff's car then skidded and plunged over the embankment, landing on a ledge about 75 feet above the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad.

SECOND AVENUE CRASH

Dominic Parise, 35, of 41 Fleming avenue, McKees Rocks, and Frank Norsue, 35, of Pittock, were taken to Mercy Hospital after an automobile in which they were riding, skidded and crashed into the rear end of a Glenwood street car in Second avenue, near Brady street, last night. The auto, driven by Parise was badly damaged. Both men suffered lacerations and bruises.

ROBBERS RANSACK HOUSE AS POLICEMAN DINES

2ND-STORY MEN LOOT HOME OF OFFICER

Girl Clerk in Downtown Cigar Store, Victim of Second Holdup Raid in Year

While Police Lieut. Paul Berman was at his dinner table in his home at 2109 Bedford avenue, thieves placed a ladder against a second-floor window in the rear of the house and ransacked the rooms on the upper floor last night, the officer reported.

The thieves carried away an overcoat valued at $65, a string of pearls valued at $25 and $13 in cash.

ROB CIGAR CLERK

Fifteen dollars was the loot the thug who held up Sara Spiegel, of 226 South Millvale avenue, clerk in Russell's cigar store at 810 Liberty avenue, got last night.

Pointing a revolver at Miss Spiegle, the robber ordered her to hand over the money in the register. Miss Spiegle scooped up the contents and handed them over to the robber who then darted from the store.

HER SECOND HOLDUP

It was Miss Spiegle's second experience with thugs, she related. In April she was held up in a similar manner.

Two Negroes attacked Thomas Fields, rear of 2216 LaPlace street, near his home last night and robbed him of $7. The money was taken from his pockets after he was knocked to the ground.

A lone highwayman held up Lawrence Tyrok, of 4926 Baum boulevard, at Morewood and Center avenues, and robbed him of a stickpin valued at $35 and $12 in cash.

Mt. Lebanon Dedicates Its 'Cradle of Learning,' 149 Years Old

The "Cradle of Learning," Western Pennsylvania's oldest school structure, was dedicated in Mt. Lebanon yesterday in observance of Armistice Day. A parade, speeches, fireworks and dancing were featured, under auspices of the Mt. Lebanon Lions Club.

Speakers eulogized the spirit of the early settlers in organizing the first school west of the Alleghenies in tracing its growth down through the years, and lauded its accomplishments during its years of existence.

SCOUTS TO USE CABIN

The 149-year-old log house has been moved from Beadling, and reconstructed on a mound in Mt. Lebanon Municipal Park. It will be used by the Boy Scouts of the South Hills.

Dr. John G. Bowman, chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh, said in part:

"A reason to be proud of Pittsburgh and Pennsylvania is for the embodying of the pioneer spirit, the same spirit that aided Daniel Boone to win over Cumberland Gap. At that time they wore homespun jackets, pants made of leather, and coon-caps. Those who wanted to be fancy fastened a tail to the cap. The larger boys carried guns, and most of the undersized boys carried dirks.

SPIRIT STILL SOARS

"In 1890 the University of Pittsburgh asked the students to discontinue carrying dirks. The building of the log school was the expression of courage, plus spirituality. In building the Cathedral of Learning, at the university, we got the idea from the log schoolhouse. The new school is big and high, and we can continue building on top of it. The pioneer spirit has not yet come to an end."

Other speakers were Judge Robert M. Ewing, president of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania and a member of the Pennsylvania Historical Commission; Mrs. C. W. Kenney, a member of the board of school directors, Mt. Lebanon Township; Mrs. Thomas Orr, chairman of the educational committee of the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club; Robert L. Kelley, a member of the South Hills Kiwanis Club; L. C. Price, president of the Rotary Club of Dormont; R. H. Rubottom, a member of the park committee, and Township Commissioners C. W. Scheck, Charles Clatty, L. C. Clark and S. A. Meneilly.

The presentation of the school was made by Howard Haines, president of the Mt. Lebanon Lions Club and chairman of the dedication exercises. The latch string to the structure was accepted by Edwin B. Goldsmith, township solicitor. The invocation was given by the Rev. James E. Wagner, of the Mt. Lebanon Methodist Episcopal Church, and the benediction by Father Flaherty, of the St. Bernard's Church and School, of Mt. Lebanon. The flag-raising was held by the American Legion, Boy Scouts and school children. Music was by the Mt. Lebanon School Orchestra.

SHORT MEASURE CHARGE PROBED

Inspectors of the city ordinance office today investigated complaints that dealers in the Diamond market were selling cranberries and other commodities by liquid instead of dry measure.

James Bailey, chief ordinance officer, said that use of liquid measures resulted in a loss of 15 per cent to the purchaser and was a violation of the state commodity act, carrying a penalty of $25 fine for the first offense and $50 fine for subsequent offenses.

The inspectors were instructed to make informations against any dealers found using the wrong measures.

OFFERED BRIBE, OFFICER SAYS

Patrolman R. D. Thompson, in North Side Police Court, today exhibited $50 in five and one dollar bills which he testified had been offered him by one of two alleged bootleggers to free them.

Jack Mirabella, 37, of 1416 Sheffield street, who tendered the money, according to the officer's testimony, was held for court on a charge of bribery and violating the Snyder act. His alleged partner, Vincent Poto, 40, same address, was held on a liquor charge.

Patrolman Thompson testified that he investigated a complaint by neighbors at 5 a. m. that two men were trying to enter a garage in the rear of 1130 West North avenue and found the two accused men. In their car were eight five-gallon cans of moonshine and in the garage eight more cans, Thompson said. Mirabella said the garage was his. On the way to the station the bribe was offered, Thompson testified.

SAVAGE TALK!

Now—they admire and seek his counsel

WHY the change? This man reasoned that it must be his general health condition. So he started taking S.S.S. tonic regularly—he began to feel better, and after a short time everything began to look brighter—the old time enthusiasm for work took hold—doubt and suspicion faded out—faith in himself was restored. Naturally friends returned and life took on a bright outlook.

More red-blood-cells will change your rundown system into one that is healthy and alert. Avoid going too near the danger line.

S.S.S. should be your safeguard. Millions of people have found this the easiest and surest way to keep themselves "fit." S.S.S. helps Nature build up and enrich your blood. Your skin clears up! Your whole body is strengthened, invigorated! If your vitality is slipping away from you try S.S.S. Its successful record of over 100 years in building red-cells in the blood is a guarantee of satisfaction. Get the large size bottle. At all drug stores.

(Right) Anemic red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh.

SAGGING at SEVEN

The first morning hour is the barometer of the day. If you wake up heavy-headed, feeling nervous, tired and so upset the mere thought of food is nauseating... you are probably the victim of a condition that destroys energy, beauty and youth, that will leave you looking old, haggard, and ill if you don't do something about it.

SYS-TEM-IC POISONING

OLD ideas have been swept aside by recent knowledge gained in the realm of medical science. Now we know that the purest, most healthful foods can be your greatest foes. In them lurks infection that is the cause of most kidney, liver, stomach and nervous disorders.

Every morsel of food that enters your mouth passes right through the stomach into the small intestine where the important task of refueling the blood with energy and health is completed. If this food does not move on immediately it generates millions of dangerous germs that pollute the blood, attack the kidneys and stomach, and upset the nervous system.

HOW TO GET RELIEF

What can be done to correct this condition and regain buoyant health? Neither harsh purgatives nor strong drugs will help you one bit. Such doses cause false stimulation that gives only temporary relief and leaves you feeling worse than ever.

To get relief and recover health . . . you must purify the system, rid it of poisonous germs just as an effective antiseptic cleanses an open wound.

The very first thing in the morning take a spoonful of Jad Salts in a glass of water and just 30 minutes later you'll feel much better.

SIFTS AWAY INFECTION

Jad Salts is totally unlike anything you've ever taken — vastly different in action and result. It is a scientific blend of ingredients that leading authorities recognize as most effective for relieving food infection. This remarkable blend gently sifts through the body and quickly sweeps away all noxious germs that cause SYS-TEM-IC POISONING. When Jad Salts is taken with plenty of water the sluggish kidneys are stimulated so that they again discharge poisonous food debris.

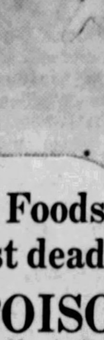
As the system is thus purified, nerves are calmed, blue mornings vanish, glorious health and energy soon return.

Now beware of food infection. At the first warning sign of SYS-TEM-IC POISONING take a spoonful of Jad Salts in a glass of water as soon as you get up and you'll sit down to breakfast feeling fine. Start each day with this exhilarating, bubbling drink that Jad Salts makes and you'll soon look and feel better than you have in years . . . You'll sleep sounder and greet the morning clear-eyed and clear-headed, keenly alert, vigorous and ready for the day.

WHERE FOOD INFECTION STARTS

Stomach
Duodenum—9 inches
Small Intestine—12 feet
Large Intestine—5 feet

Foods allowed to remain in the small intestine generate poisonous germs that breed infection and cause SYS-TEM-IC POISONING . . . recognized by kidney trouble, upset stomach, indolence, backache, dull mornings, sallow, blemished skin, nervousness, or restless, disturbed sleep.



For little stomachs with too much acid

Children are especially subject to the ills of excess acid. Sour stomach, biliousness, lack of spirits, etc., are usually the result. Quickly corrected by pleasant tasting

BRIOSCHI
(Pronounced Bree-osky)

All children like its fizzy just sweet enough taste. Quickly neutralizes the acid condition and is gently laxative, cleansing the delicate system of impurities. Give your children Brioschi. They'll like it and the results of too much acid will never trouble them.

CLERGYMEN AWARDED VARSITY LETTERS AT ST. VINCENT

SAVED FROM FLAMES

Mrs. Saunders and her baby after they were rescued in their night clothing from their burning home in Brackenridge.

RESCUE THREE FROM FLAMES

Neighbors in bare feet and night clothing rescued Paul Saunders, his wife and a year-old daughter, Rose Mary, from their burning two-story frame dwelling at 955 Cleveland avenue, Brackenridge, early today.

Charles Nold, who lives next door to the Saunders home, was awakened by the crackling flames.

Nold and his three sons—Charles, Jr., 25; Herbert, 21, and Earl, 19—without stopping to dress, ran out and placed two ladders to the second floor bedroom window of the Saunders home.

While other neighbors helped carry out Saunders, who was overcome by smoke, Nold aided Mrs. Saunders and her baby to the window. She was assisted down one ladder while Nold descended the other.

BISHOP BOYLE AMONG THOSE HONORED

Priests, Prominent Men Get Tardy Awards for Athletic Skill at Unique Reunion

LATROBE, Pa., Nov. 12.—What was perhaps the most unique sport reunion in the history of the Pittsburgh district was held last night at St. Vincent's College when scores of prominent men, including clergymen from far and near, were awarded 'varsity letters for athletic achievements that hark back as far as the '80's.

One bishop, one archabbott and many priests of the Roman Catholic church whose duties carry them as far as China, were among those who received the letters in the greatest homecoming yet known to the historic institutions that stands out majestically on the hills near Latrobe.

BISHOP BOYLE HONORED

The Rt. Rev. Hugh C. Boyle, bishop of the Pittsburgh diocese, was honored by the athletic heads of the college for his feats as a catcher for St. Vincent in the '90's, before Bishop Boyle was ordained to the priesthood.

The Rt. Rev. Cyprian Bradley, archabbott of Holy Cross College, Colorado, also was the recipient of the 'varsity "V" for his prowess on the diamond when a student at St. Vincent. An echo of the Orient was sounded when a letter was awarded to the Rev. Father Ildephonse Brandstetter, of the Catholic University of Pekin, China, who was a star on the baseball field during his college days at the famed Benedictine school.

Included among the prominent priests of Pittsburgh who were awarded the 'varsity letter was the Rev. Father James M. Delaney, of St. Agnes' Church, Oakland, who is the spiritual director of the Holy Name Society of the Pittsburgh Diocese. Father Delaney was a star catcher for St. Vincent's team in 1908, when the club went through an entire season without a defeat.

All of the letter awards were for baseball skill. Up to 1925 the matter of awarding letters to those who played on the various teams had not been carried out, but since that time the athletic officials have worked on the problem and the idea came to a climax last night at the annual homecoming festivities which followed the clash of the St. Vincent and St. Francis football elevens at Greensburg.

BANQUET SERVED

In all, more than 140 letters were awarded after an elaborate banquet had been served.

A distinctive feature of the fascinating affair was the speech made by the Rev. James Graven, of Cresson, Pa. This 70-year-old priest-humorist is the oldest living letter man of St. Vincent. He was the first boy to sport the uniform representing the college, being the captain of the ball team of 1888. The humorous speeches of Father Graven and Father Delaney were high spots of the big evening.

The Rt. Rev. Alfred Koch, O. S. B. archaobott of St. Vincent, gave the message of welcome to the letter men whose exploits have left a rich heritage at the college. John J. Maloney, of Pittsburgh, president of the Alumni Association, made one of the principal addresses. Maloney also is a letter man of the school.

Others who gave short talks were the Rev. Jerome Rupprecht, athletic manager; the Rev. Alphonse Mihm, Creed Westfall, a three-letter athlete of the school and Charles J. Doyle, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. The Rev. Gerald Bridge was toastmaster.

FIREMEN FIGHT BLAZE IN CELL BLOCK

South Side Police Station Fire Caused by Rubbish Stuffed Between Walls

Firemen from No. 11 company were called to the South Side Police Station late yesterday to extinguish a waste fire between the cell walls and the main walls of the building.

Derelicts who had been locked up in the station were blamed for stuffing papers between the walls, and when workmen from a renovating firm used a blow torch to eradicate vermin in the cell blocks, the waste material caught fire.

The smoldering refuse was discovered by Acting Sergt. William Sullivan. He called the firemen, who used chemicals to extinguish the blaze.

After the dinner, the gathering was entertained with a cabaret staged by Miss Betty Mathias, Carrick dancing teacher. Twelve-year-old Lucille Minor, of Brookline, took entertainment laurels with an acrobatic dance.

WOMAN SLAIN IN 'NUMBERS' ROW

Lelia Gray, 25, was found shot to death on the porch of her Morgan (Pa.), home early today, and her husband, John Gray, 30, is being held by the coroner on a murder charge. Both are Negroes.

Gray told Deputy Coroner Stanley Guzinsky and County Detective Robert McMillen, they said, that after an argument over him playing the "numbers," his wife went out on the porch and shot herself. The shooting resulted after he called a "Bob Brown" to place some money on today's "numbers."

An autopsy revealed today, according to the coroner's office, that the bullet had entered the left arm and chest of the woman, and that it would have been impossible for her to shoot herself.

NEVILLE COKE
In the Home Furnace

If you are having trouble with your furnace or if it is not performing as efficiently as it ought to, call us up and our Heating Engineer may be able to suggest a remedy.

Government statistics show that 25% of coal cost is lost in smoke and gas. The Bureau of Mines says that "60% of the smoke and soot in residential sections comes from heating furnaces." Authorities estimate the annual cost of smoke to be $20 per capita.

Smoke-producing elements have been removed from NEVILLE COKE. This better Coke is 90% pure carbon or heat energy. It burns evenly, slowly and completely. Three tons of NEVILLE COKE should produce as much heat and last as long as five tons of good quality bituminous coal. It is clean and easy to handle, and can be used in any furnace without additional equipment.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Fall's Third Bud Makes Her Bow

Today brings another debut, that of popular Jane Marshall, daughter of the Charles D. Marshalls, of Fifth avenue, whose mother is presenting her to society at a tea this afternoon in the Marshall home. Jane is the third young girl to "come out" this fall.

But before I talk about the tea, I want to mention two entertainments I've just learned are planned for her. At one of these she will share honors with a sister bud, Frances Kier. Mrs. Norwood Johnston will give the affair, a luncheon, on November 20, in the Twentieth Century Club. On the night of the Cinderella ball, November 28, Mrs. H. P. Davis will give a dinner in the Twentieth Century Club in honor of Jane.

Colorful Costume

The sleeves are brief, and a dainty pink and blue buckle fastening the girdle at the high waistline is matched in hue by a strand of beads and satin slippers. Mrs. Marshall has chosen a cricket green velvet and lace gown. During the afternoon the debutante will carry different gift bouquets.

Decorating the home for the event are afterglow roses, ferns and palms.

Here for the debut are the debutante's two married sisters, Mrs. Lawrence E. Wilson, of New York, and Mrs. William W. Darsie, of Baltimore.

Another sister, Mary Marshall, will be one of the bud's aides. Her list also includes Elizabeth McKay, Frances Kier and Elizabeth Childs, sister buds, and Louise Bickford, Harriet Fickes and Nancy Allderdice, debutantes of the past winter.

Mrs. Marshall has asked to assist her Mrs. William Watson Smith, Mrs. Howard Hale McClintic, Mrs. George Liggett Craig, Mrs. Herman G. Veeder, Mrs. Michael L. Benedum, Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly, Mrs. George S. Love, Mrs. John N. Marshall, Mrs. Henry C. McEldowney, Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. Robert T. M. McCready, Mrs. Robert J. McKay, Mrs. William Todd, Mrs. James H. Beal, Mrs. Grant S. Dibert, Mrs. H. P. Davis, Mrs. John H. Nicholson and Mrs. Norwood Johnston.

AMONG SOCIETY WOMEN CONDUCTING ANNUAL SALE IN TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB TODAY

Travellers Pass 40th Milestone

The vicissitudes and blessings of 40 years of club life were recalled in Floyd Gibbons style by Mrs. J. S. Schreiner at the anniversary meeting of the Travellers yesterday afternoon in the Congress of Clubs. The club, she explained, grew from a desire to study travel on the part of seven women in the old Pittsburgh School of Design. The first meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Andrew Easton, who was elected as the first president.

At one time there developed a difference of opinion as to changing the name of the organization and this resulted in the withdrawal of certain members who founded what is now the New Era Club of Western Pennsylvania.

In its lifetime the Travellers have "traveled" all over the world and have numbered in the membership well-known women from both professional and private life. The club is a charter member of the Congress of Clubs and of the Allegheny County Federation.

W. C. Batchelor spoke for the welfare fund yesterday and music was furnished by Mrs. Dale Whitby Westphal.

TURQUOISE TINT SEEN UPON THE SEA OF WINTER FASHIONS

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Nov. 12.—A turquoise tint is cast upon the fashion sea and lingers with the coming of the moon. This shade of blue has won much favor in this year of black and white and is found as a note of color on many daytime costumes. A turquoise and black hat for instance worn with a black costume touched lightly with the same blue, perhaps at the neckline or at the wrist. And at gala evening festivities it appears with a frequency that is especially conspicuous now when black and white gowns are dominating nearly all fashionable gatherings.

PATOU IS ONE to advance the place of turquoise blue on this season's color chart and today we are showing an ensemble in this tint recently created by the famous designer. The coat is of broadcloth with a bloused top and circular flounce reaching to the instep. The elbow length sleeves are of very simple cut in one piece with the top of the coat. A large shawl collar and deep cuffs are of beaver. Although the coat permits only a glimpse of the gown beneath it would be discovered to be of a matching turquoise hue in crepe marocain, if the elegant wrap were removed. Incidentally, although the ensemble idea is taking on new significance in advance showings of the coming mode, we are seeing at present a great enthusiasm for a black coat, perhaps of velvet trimmed in ermine and worn with a pure white gown.

Why Drug the Stomach
When Your Blood Cells Control High Blood Pressure and Most All Chronic Diseases?

The blood stream is merely the medium through which these energies float and carry on their duties. If the stream is thick and slovenly, if engorged, swollen, contracted or tortuous, is not the function hampered or arrested as the case may be? A clot in the brain—apoplexy! If a stoppage in the lungs or limbs—dropsy. If in the brain—paralysis. If in the heart—sudden death. If in the eye—blindness. If too much blood—vertigo, insomnia. Repeated colds, low vitality, due to faulty blood. The germs themselves are harmless, but the toxins formed by them produce the poisoning. If an infection takes place, what suffers? The blood. In fever, where is temperature the highest? In the blood. In malaria, where is the germ? In the blood. In diphtheria, smallpox, rheumatism, gout—nearly all infections find their seat in the blood stream. Don't you believe it is time to give some special thought to these basic facts and eliminate this stomach drugging, which you know is wrong, neglecting the one only sure and effective avenue of medication—the blood stream? Lack of protein hinders cells' work. When the body cells undergo degenerative changes in Bright's Disease, arteriosclerosis and in all chronic diseases, we find distinct and demonstrable evidence of impairment in nutrition.

Thousands of patients (men and women), were successfully treated for Rheumatism, Anemia, Debility, Diabetes, Asthma, Kidney Troubles, Heart Trouble, Stomach Trouble, Swollen Glands, High Blood Pressure, Blood and Skin Diseases.

GANGSTER GIRL

By JACK LAIT

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Polack Annie, notorious gangster girl, flees Chicago and seeks the protection of New York's biggest racketeer, "Silk" Freeman. Freeman is fascinated by her beauty and provides an expensive hotel suite for her. At a night club the admiration of the young and wealthy Tommy Gillespie for Annie arouses Freeman's jealousy.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER VI.

Polack Annie heard the key glide oilily in the keyhole, Silk Freeman's Park avenue apartment had turned rather chill. He had sent her up the elevator and the ex-con servant had served her a shot of Scotch. She wasn't hectic for his arrival. But she felt chilly. The key in the lock was rather a relief.

B. B. it was, who entered. He threw his black soft tux hat somewhere and came into the room on the peaks of the stiff carpet.

"Hey, there, red-head," he called. "Did you get a shot?"

"I got a big shot."

"You bet you got a big shot. You got Silk Freeman . . . . sorry to have held you up—I was layin' out a deal downstairs—we're goin' in the transportation business.

"That's swell . . . . by the way, B. B. when we were havin' dinner, across the room was a boy—a blondish, square shouldered kid—did you give him a tumble"

"Was he with a dark, skinny-faced twist?"

"Yeh. Do you by any chance know who he is?"

"I ain' takin' any chance. I knew who he was. It's him I'm goin' in the truckin' business with."

"No, aw, behave—he didn' know you——"

"But he sure overlooked nothin' about you. He just come out o' college. You're the only post-graduate course that appealed to him. An' you could prob'ly be a liberal education to a rich young stooge like him. He was studyin' you pretty."

"Oh, Silk—nothin' like that—but he was a good-lookin' youngster."

"So was the Edgewater Kid from all I can hear. An' they put him on the spot, didn' they?" roared Freeman. "It's jennies like you get good men croaked. For fifteen bucks you can get your hair set permanent. But there ain' enough dough in the world to get your brains set that way."

Silk Is Angered

Polack Annie was in no position to battle. She swallowed dryly.

"I—I didn't say nothin'—jus' that he was a well set-up boy an'——"

"Listen, fire-top. His ol' man owns a fleet o' river-front trucks. I've had my eyes on it a long time, an' nobody knew it. T'night he happened to be in the dive. An' he had his eyes on you. I almos' forgot about his dad's game. It looked like that silly juve might o' gone along neat. But—no. He's got this Schuyder moll — s'ciety, dough, class, fam'ly an' woozy about him. But he has to itch. He jus' has to.

"An', with the inspiration o' youth an' dumb Irish, he picks out o' eight million people, half o' whom are women, one—who? The one who's with Silk Freeman! He's a grand picker, that punk. I'll run him so fast an' so far that his soles'll be so thin that if he steps on a dime he'll know if it's heads or tails. B. B., an' nobody else, speaking!"

"Aw, Silk—you're overplayin' the whole sketch—I just asked who he was."

"That's all. An' he just asked who you was. He knew who I was. That's what candles me. Sweet spirits—I knew red hair had a kick, but I never dreamed it was that potent. It robs a guy of all sense o' humor, all sense o' p'portion, all sense at all. That young Gillespie saw you with me—ME—Silk, in the flesh. An' he had the guts to buzz the waiter . . . this world's goin' goofy."

Tom Hears of Silk

"I was small long enough. An' don't ask me questions. My specialty is givin' answers . . . an' that'll be enough o' findin' fault with me, too. I'm about fed up. Did it seem a long time I was away?"

"Long," echoed Annie, with artistically faked dreaminess, "it seemed ages!"

"That's as it should be," said Freeman. "It'll be more ages before I leave you again."

"But, listen, dad," Tommy Gillespie was saying, "Why go into a decline because a dozen or so truck teamsters quit? Times aren't so fat right now. There must be many an honest man eager and ready to take a job."

Tall Tom Gillespie looked down at his idol, his kid. His kid was a Yale graduate. His kid looked like his mother. His kid was smart, brave, fine. Tall Tom wished he was a young girl instead of an old man—he just wanted to show Tommy what love really was.

"Boy," said the grizzled old politician, boss trucker and pier fighter, "I haven't gone through all this all this time for nothing. Somebody is muscling in on us. Do you understand what that means?"

"I would if it was anybody else but us."

"That's talking. But—that's the way things are rum now. And they've let us by for a long time. Now they've got around to us. I'm not as young as I used to be—"

"But I am, dad."

"Fine. That's the trouble with a college education. They teach you Latin and algebra—but—"

"Well, I didn't have to learn everything in school. Maybe I was born with something."

"You were—you sure were—but . . . you never heard of Silk Freeman."

Tommy almost fell off the chair. He looked again at his father to make sure it wasn't some joke.

"I met him, dad—tonight . . . that is, I saw him . . . he had a beautiful girl with him."

Start From Bottom

Tall Tom Gillespie shot a glance at his boy, then turned—ostensibly to light a stogey.

"Oh—he had a good lookin' girl, did he?"

"Gorgeous. She must have been a society girl."

Tall Tom laughed.

"Society girl—Hell. What's with Freeman is like Freeman."

"No, dad. She had eyes—oh, what eyes—"

Tall Tom shuddered. This was a blow—his son was only human. The old man had come from Ireland, he had slovened in steerage, he had slopped in the slums—and his only-born thought that a girl was high-and-lofty because she was pretty.

"I didn't want to worry you, youngster," said the old man. "But this Freeman is crashing in on us."

"I'll break his neck," cried Tommy, impulsively.

The laugh that Tom Gillespie let go wasn't so robust.

"You may know your New Haven, baby—but you aren't quite up on your New York. Rather than see you get in trouble, I'll see every truck I own on the junk-heap. We've got plenty. We can retire."

Tommy stood up and squared his shoulders.

"You can retire," he said. "But I'm only starting. No Freeman is going to run me out of my own . . . gee, that was a swell-looking girl, dad!"

Tall Tom Gillespie's eyes went wet. His cub reminded himself to much of himself, when—courage, a girl, a fight, the thrill of youth in the responding veins and the course of warm blood from a stout he-heart—

"I'll retire, dad—right now—but not from business. I'm going to find out what's back of all this. I know my mind now. No swivel-chair job for me. I'm going on a truck—from the bottom up. And this is no Horatio Alger story . . . good night, pop. Here's one driver won't walk out.

Polack Annie was watching Silk Freeman counting $1,000 bills and smaller ones in his mahogany desk. He was writing deposit slips and clipping them onto the little piles of precious papers.

Thoughts of Kid Linger

"Give the lady what she craves," called Freeman, severely. "I don't like that kind o' beefs in this joint."

The gray-haired vassal came back with almost a tumblerful. He bowed and set it on the leaf of the desk. Annie downed half of it, rocked under the jolt and wobbled. She knew she had something coming. She wanted to break the fall. Silk Freeman was a Big Shot—yes; but the Edgewater Kid hadn't yet gotten out of her system. Even a Polack Annie can be human.

Polack Annie bent just far enough backward so his extended fingertips wouldn't touch her spin.

"I care as much for you," she said, solemly, "as for any living man, I swear it!"

"You do!" and he lunged forward. "Say that again — you do?"

"I do. May I croak where I sit if I lie."

Silk Freeman got out of his chair. He bent down and kissed the vagrant visitor on her neck.

"Annie," he hoarsed, "that'll start all I crave up to now. In the morning you'll tell me better . . . are you ready?"

Learning to Make Own Decisions Best Road to Happiness, Says Fay King

By FAY KING.

One of the most important things in life is to learn to make your own decisions.

It is surprising how many persons go through life forever acting upon the suggestions of others even in the smallest and most unimportant matters.

Even in affairs of the heart a girl must be sure that the man in the case is not pleading his own cause too well and influencing her too much.

And when it takes too long to convince yourself, it is usually better not to decide in favor of a thing.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation Of Love's Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Marion Leaves to Prepare for Party.

That both Marion's mother and stepfather were as nervous as I over her possible reaction to Harry Underwood's proposal I knew as I saw their suddenly tensed faces, grim, despite the set, stereotyped smile on each mouth.

But there was no need for worry on one part of any of us. Marion's face held only the joy of a bewildered traveler who suddenly sees a path in what appeared to be an impenetrable wood.

"Oh, Dad!" she caroled, and if he had been in truth her father, she could not have put more affection into the words. "That will be wonderful! Mummy can't possibly worry with you along. Besides I want to show you off to the crowd. He's the most marvelous rider, Ron. He's a regular Centaur."

"I'll stand for that, Marion," Harry Underwood said, and I wondered if the rest noted the deep tenderness beneath the raillery, "but let me declare myself now. If you ever refer to me as a Cossack or a cowboy, everything is over between us. Like the immortal Egbert, I can be pushed just so far."

Helena Brixton echoed Marion's laughter, then looked at her wrist watch.

"We mustn't stay a minute longer," she said. "I've a dozen things to see to, and Carolyn will be coming along presently, to find no mother to guide her. And Ronald, your roommate, ought to have his errands completed by now, don't you think so?"

"He ought to," he said, then explained with a rueful grin.

"We bungled our package," he said, "and found ourselves minus a lot of little things when we arrived. So poor George was elected to make the trips to the haberdashers and the tailors. It wasn't quite sporting, I know, but I thought I ought to come with Mother."

It was to the credit of all of us, I think, that no one of us smiled at this naive exposition of filial duty. But Harry Underwood gave us all a chance to laugh the next second, for which I, at least, was grateful.

"So the Yale boys are still forgetting their dress ties and studs and black silk socks," he drawled. "Human nature never changes does it? But I can see that Mrs. Brixton is edging toward the door, with the optimistic wish that she can get you young people started. How about it Marion? Do you want to take all your bags?"

"I'll have to, I'm afraid," Marion replied ruefully. "You see, I haven't the slightest idea which bag has my riding habit, and which the gown I'm going to wear tonight. You see, I was going to send home a trunk, and just bring one bag, and then when I found out we were coming earlier and might need more clothes, I just borrowed some extra bags and tumbled the things from the trunk into them."

"I imagine they're tumbled, all right," Lillian said when her husband, with an ostentatious efficiency which I guessed was especially staged, had swept Mrs. Brixton and her charges out of the room in charge of Purnell, and had returned from the elevator. "I hope she'll remember that they need pressing."

"Don't worry," I admonished her. "Helena Brixton patently is a woman with a distinct flair for clothes, and her young daughter is twice as flighty as Marion. She will see that all their things are in order."

"I suppose you're right," Lillian said dubiously, and her husband sent a furtive glance of gratification at me. If she could occupy her mind with sartorial troubles, he had succeeded in quelling her other fears for Marion, for the time at least.

"I'll have to look out for my own riding togs," he said, and at something subtly prideful in is tone Lillian raised her head and smiled at him.

"Did you hear Marion call you 'Dad?'" she asked softly.

"Did I?" he retorted with emphasis, and crossing the room, bent over her affectionately. They had completely forgotten that I was in the room, were oblivious to everything else save their mutual joy that Marion was returning the deep affection which her stepfather had for her. I slipped noiselessly away and into Marion's room, where I found Mary still in bed, but awake and staring at the wall.

"Hello! Auntie Madge!" she said as I entered, and I knew at the first intonation that her mood was despondent and bitter. "Did you see Marion? Wasn't she the first violin, though? What wouldn't you give to be her age and feeling like that?"

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, November 13

According to the lunar transits in operation on this day there may be many problems and complications, with dangers to employment and a critical state of affairs where letters, publishings, writings, contracts and promotions are concerned, attended by many delays and anxieties. Yet the solar beam toward Jupiter, this powerful celestrial pair being in trine aspect, may be moved to overcome all adversities and conflicts, especially since Jupiter also has the assistance of the moon to translate its friendliness.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year in which there may be many adverse and conflicting situations to overcome, but they are assured of the powerful assistance of Sol trine Jupiter and Luna sextile Jupiter, a combination to be counted upon as "eleventh hour friends." It is a time for transcending difficulties.

A child born on this day may be capable and ambitious, but may have traits of irresponsibility, extravagance and self-indulgence to overcome in order to attain its ambitions and reach position in life.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

Mrs. Solomon Says—

Verily, verily, my Daughter, not ALL the Good Husbands are as painless as a modern dentist.

For, a man may be the backbone of virtue, yet seem more like a bread-crumb down the neck or a wrinkle on the heel.

Go to. As an earache in a November wind, so is a man that gazeth critically at his wife's complexion or remarketh the crookedness of the seam of her stockings. And he that pointeth out the spot upon the tablecloth is a thorn in the flesh.

Behold, Ananias was not a hero; but, as an husband, he was more comforting than one that vaunteth his frankness, and telleth his wife of her shortcomings, in the presence of her friends.

* * *

As a New England conscience at a holiday revel, so is an husband that seeketh to read his wife's letters over her shoulder and keepeth tabs upon her shopping budget.

rouge and ordaineth the length of her skirts and the height of her evening gowns is as a starched towel to the face.

As tight shoe, as a hairpin that presseth upon a nerve, so is a consort that snoopeth in the ice-chest and raveth at the laundry bills.

And he that worketh off his morning gloom at the breakfast table that he may be a little ray of sunshine around the office, is as depressing as a rainy Thanksgiving Day.

A stepping husband may break the heart and shatter the vanity; but he that picketh at his food and sniffeth his egg suspiciously and scorneth the burnt end of the bacon is a human headache, though his virtues be whiter than snow.

* * *

Lo, he that lingereth in the speakeasy, while the dinner

But he that cometh home promptly with the grouch that will not come off, and taketh always the OPPOSITE side of any question "just to balance it," is as a dose of medicine after each meal.

He that describeth his wife for a blonde may be cast out in the divorce courts; but he that regardeth the shower bath as a one-man institution and the morning newspaper as his by divine right must be endured, forever.

* * *

Verily, verily, NO husband is painless. For every man hath his little foibles and weaknesses, which try the soul of woman. But of painful husbands, some are more ACUTE than others.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Get Rid of Infected Tonsils—It's Safer.

Not so long ago the medical profession removed the offending tonsil and considered it quite a minor operation. Today while the operation is quite safe and calls for no special worry, yet the physician looks upon it as a bit of major surgery and goes about it with deliberate care.

DR. COPELAND

Many cases of tonsil infection do not demand operation. But, if after careful watching, your physician tells you that you better have your tonsils removed, he is trying to save you from something much worse than a slight operation.

The tonsils are made up of fibrous tissue and in them are deep pockets which run right down into the tonsil. The warm mucus and bits of food that may lodge in these pockets form resting places for germs and are apt to hatch poisons. These poisons are taken up in the blood stream and carried to every part of the body.

Diseased tonsils may result in rheumatism, heart disease, colds and sore throat, eye or ear troubles, nervousness, dizziness and plenty of other troubles.

Many a child is uncommonly susceptible to colds. This condition may lead to many other even more serious ailments unless it is checked and the cause found and removed. The common cold keeps more children out of school than all other childhood diseases put together. Perhaps the tonsils are at fault.

A child may have enlarged soft tonsils and a bad throat. They are a menace to health and the tonsils may have to be removed in this case.

Very often the tonsils are deeply embedded in the surrounding tissues. Then, if they become infected they are exceedingly dangerous, for they are capable of injecting proportionately larger amounts of poison into the system because of their deepseated position.

The glands of the neck act as filters of the blood and lymph from the throat and nose. When these glands become infected, removal of the tonsils often effects a cure.

Treatment by the X-ray is becoming more and more universal, not only in tonsil treatment but in many other conditions where the restoration of normal tissue is necessary. It becomes important in shrinking too large and soft tonsils that endanger the health, and in treatment of the throat after tonsil removal, in order to make the throat more resistant to infection.

If the tonsils are diseased or are not self-cleansing, then the sooner we get rid of them the better. Most of us hate facing the truth, but it is far better to have a little discomfort for two or three days than to go on for years having bad health.

T. H. H. Q.—What do you advise for head noises. I have this trouble in one of my ears?

A.—Try to locate the underlying cause first of all. Catarrhal conditions are often responsible for trouble of this kind.

Tell It to Sally

By SALLY MARTIN

Should a Wife Play Santa Claus to Parasitic Relatives?

Have you a "Hand-Out Hannah" in your family? Someone who sits around, refusing to do a lick of work, or make a spark of effort to help himself, or herself; waiting for donations, like a pup waits for biscuits . . . meanwhile moaning an' wailing about "Cruel Fate" and "How Hard Life Is?"

Then you'll understand the riot in Sam's family.

But Sam's objecting to being a "Gold Mine" for Sissy—so now the Little Wife, Ethel, is threatening to break up their home——"Dear Sally Martin:

"May I present a problem and ask for your counsel? My wife and I are having some trouble which may break up our otherwise happy home. And I don't want that to happen.

"We really love each other and we have a delightful little son, three years old. Both my wife and I worship him. Of course, we have arguments, but they're all unimportant, save those over one 'bone of contention.' And here I come to the big trouble.

"My wife has an older sister who made an unfortunate marriage with a man who left her and their little girl and refused to be interested in them further.

"Since that happened, this sister has developed into a first-class 'sponge.'

"At first, I sympathized with her, and was willing to help her out. But after seeing the way she just laid down and waited for handouts, I became disgusted with her, and objected to being the goat any longer.

"Now if she wanted to better herself . . . to fit herself for work of some kind, so she could stand up and be self-respecting, I would be glad to help her. But she doesn't. She has gradually slid down the scale, until she is living with a man, a foreigner, in a little, dirty shack in a shiftless, dirty neighborhood, without proper heat, ventilation, sanitation, or any other necessity.

"And so long as she gets contributions from Ethel, my wife, she makes no effort whatever to better herself.

"We've had numerous arguments over this, and Ethel has promised me that she wouldn't give her anything more. But she has always broken her promises. Finally, the other day, it came to the big row.

"And Ethel flew into a rage and told me that she didn't love me any more . . . and that if her sister wasn't good enough to share in what we had, she, Ethel, wasn't good enough to live with me. Then she began to pack, to take our baby and go to live with her sister in that unspeakable hovel.

"Isn't there some way that I can make Ethel see that she owes me and the baby something as well as this 'gimme' sister? Or, is she right and I wrong? Should I stand for sister and say nothing? SAMUEL S."

Who's right, son?

You are. This woman has no right whatever to expect handouts from you. And she certainly should be expected to dig in for herself.

But you can't handle the thing with a club. That won't work. Certainly Ethel has responsibilities to you, and to her home and her baby...responsibilities that come ahead of any to her sister.

But you must remember, too, the old saying that "blood is thicker than water," and realize that she isn't fighting you to be mean, but because she honestly thinks that she's defending her sister against abuse and injustice. You took her for "better or worse" brother. Wrong attitudes, like her present one, are part of the "worse." The best of women often go "haywire" over their relations.

Don't protest at her using your money. Acknowledge that it's her money, too—since she helped you earn it. But put it up to her sense of fair play and decency. Offer to help her sister get on her feet—work up some practical proposition that would put her on her feet—and then put that up to the wife, as one square shooter to another. Chances are, she'll be only too glad to play the game with you, if you'll go at it in that spirit. Most of your trouble, I suspect, has come from treating the wife like a dependent and glorifying the tramp sister into a martyr. You'd run amuck yourself, if anybody tried those tactics on you.

PITT GETS STIFF DRILLS

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

First Plaid 7-6 Defeat.
Two Early 6-5 Falls.
Pitt Nosed Out Thrice.
Stribling's Stock Hurt.
Hockey's New Rules.
Joe LaMark Praised.

STEFFEN'S ONLY LOSS BY ONE POINT

THE FACT THAT it was the first time in their last nine football meetings that Pitt succeeded in defeating Carnegie Tech twice in succession, a trick turned by the Skibos themselves against the Panthers in 1923 and 1924, wasn't the most unusual feature of last Saturday's close battle at the Stadium. It was the first time the Tartans ever lost a game by a score of 7 to 6, and the first time they ever were defeated by a single point by any opponent since the value of a touchdown was increased from five to six points.

Judge W. P. Steffen

Judge W. P. Steffen, the Plaid mentor, who has one of the most retentive memories in football, remarks that this was the only occasion in all of his seventeen years of coaching here on which his Schenley Park charges were nosed out by one point. The records bear him out. The closest approach was a 9-to-7 defeat at W. & J.'s hands in 1923. Graduate Manager Clarence Overend recalls that even in the earlier years of the gridiron sport at Carnegie, before the coming of Steffen, the Plaid never lost a game 7 to 6 and only twice was defeated by any score in which the difference was just one point.

BOTH OF THESE defeats were suffered before the scoring worth of a touchdown was boosted from five to six points in 1910. The first came in 1906, the year that brought in the forward pass, the onside kick, the increasing of the distance to be gained from five to 10 yards, and the restrictions on the dropping of linemen behind the line of scrimmage. Kiski beat Carnegie that year, 6 to 5, and three seasons later, or in 1909, Western Reserve downed the Plaid by the same score. Those were Carnegie's only one-point defeats prior to last Saturday.

Singularly, Pitt has a record of the same sort that stands out. The Panthers were defeated by a 7-to-6 score only by Stanford in a post-season game three years ago, and in all its history, both as W. U. P. and Pitt, the Blue and Gold lost only two games by a single point, the first 30 years ago, when W. U. P. was defeated by West Virginia, 6 to 5, and the other in a 1918 post-season event when Pitt lost to the Cleveland Naval Reserves, 10 to 9. In all of their other games that were decided by one point, five in all, the Panthers have managed to land on the winning end. They beat Navy 20 to 19 in 1916, and Penn State in 1912, W. & J. in 1919, Penn in 1922, and Carnegie in 1930, all 7 to 6.

THE OUTRIGHT RELEASE of Outfielder Dennis Southern to Baltimore indicates that the Pirate management feels assured Lloyd Waner will be in shape for a full season of baseball next year, and also has plenty of confidence in the young extra fly-chasers on the roster.

Dennis Southern

Southern had never been counted upon for regular duty and appears to have fallen below expectations even for emergency work. Connie Mack put in a claim for him when the Pirates obtained the player from the Phillies in a waiver exchange for Fred Brickell last summer, but when the Bucs asked waivers this time the A's, like all the other big leagues clubs, passed him up.

THE STOCK OF Young Stribbling as a heavyweight championship contender in the fight game is going down as rapidly as it came up after his knockout wins over Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott. His refusal of a $50,000 offer to meet Jack Sharkey at a charity show in New York on December 12, after Sharkey had consented to take the match for training expenses with the remainder of his end going to poor children, cost the Georgian much of his popularity, and he suffered a further loss of prestige in his Armistice Day bout with Arthur Dekuh in Atlanta.

THE 220-POUND DEKUH is not to be mentioned in the same breath with any first-class heavyweight, and the fact that Stribling's decision over him after a miserable bout was booed by the fans of W. L.'s own home district is pretty good evidence that the Georgian looked liked anything but a championship possibility.

From the position of being the logical and generally accepted challenger for Max Schmeling's title, Stribling is in a fair way to put himself out of the picture altogether. He hurt his cause greatly by running away from the opponent he should have accepted, particularly when there was a charitable purpose to be helped, and he has sent his stock still lower by failing to defeat decisively the setup he selected in preference to Sharkey. Stribling evidently is back under the family management again. As was demonstrated before, the sooner he breaks away from it the better for his fistic welfare.

IT MAY NOT be out of order to give the new hockey rules the once over in view of the fact that Pittsburgh's International League season will be opened tomorrow night at Duquesne Garden with the Yellow Jackets, after a period of intensive training under Coach Charles Reid, meeting the London Club. The most important of the new regulations, and the one likely to cause the most confusion until its working are understood, is the delayed penalty.

Charles Reid

This season no team will have fewer than four players on the ice at any time. If, after two players of the same team are already in the penalty box, a third member of their outfit incurs a penalty, a substitute is allowed to take his place on the ice. The third penalized puckster goes to the penalty box, but his penalty time does not start until one of the two other players there has served out his sentence.

THE FIRST MAN leaving the penalty box under these conditions must wait until there is a halt in play and then skate across to his team's bench. He cannot resume play until the substitute for the third penalized player is taken off the ice. No player can take part in a play unless he has a whole stick in his hands. If his stick is broken he must get another from his bench. He cannot take another player's stick. Neither can one be thrown or carried to him. He must go to the bench and get it himself.

THE RULE GOVERNING crossing into the opposi team's defen zone ahead of the puck has been clarified. The puck carrier must be the first player of the attacking team to cross the blue line. There is to be no allowance for players skating with the puck carrier. Neither will back-checking forwards of the other team, rushing back to aid the defense men, be allowed to cross ahead of the puck.

Any player carrying his stick high enough to injure an opponent, even though accidentally, must be given a 10-minute penalty. In the defense zone a thrown stick means the awarding of a goal to the opposing team, while in either of the two other zones it means a major penalty. Any player starting a fight gets a major penalty. If the attacked player retaliates he draws a minor penalty, but will not be penalized if he tries merely to clinch with his assailant.

Tomosky, Riley Knock Out Foes

FRANKLIN, Pa., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—George Nichols, 166, Buffalo, outpointed Sunny Jim Williams, 162, Cleveland, in 10 rounds here last night. Andy Tomosky, 117, Pittsburgh, knocked out Johnny Evans, 120½, Cleveland, in the second round.

Jimmy Dean, 131, Erie, was given a decision over Ken Hargraves, 131, New Kensington, in six rounds. James Riley, 132, Pittsburgh, knocked out Fred Rogers, 127, Cleveland, in the third round.

HOCKEY SEASON OPENS HERE TOMORROW

By CARL W. SHATTO.

The training campaign of Roy D. Schooley's Yellow Jackets, which began in Toronto three weeks ago and has been continued here since last Saturday, will be concluded with a single session at Duquesne Garden this afternoon.

At the finish of a long, hard drill last night, the second of the day, President-Manager Schooley and Coach Charles Reid agreed that the local skaters had attained such fine form that one more session would put them on edge for their International League lid-lifter, with the London (Ontario) Panthers at the Craig street arena tomorrow night, and a single drill is to be the program today for the first time since the puckmen arrived here.

PROBABLE LINEUP

Although neither Schooley nor Reid is willing to discuss starting lineup choices, indications are that the Jackets who will be privileged to give local fans their first glimpse of International League hockey will be as follows:

Fisher—Goal.
Fields—Center.

Although this lineup is not official, this is the way the boys DID NOT line up in the drill last night, and your correspondent repeatedly has observed that the way they don't line up in practice is the way they do line up in battle. In other words, the best forwards are sent against the best defense combination, so that both the front line and backfield may be put to the greatest test in a scrimmage.

GREGG INJURED

Green and Yankoski were at the points in front of Goalie Fisher last night, and Fields, Gregg and Proudlock made up the front line which received much attention and gave the defense aces much trouble. Draw your own conclusions.

This starting lineup will be heavy, rangy and fast. Gregg weighs 180, Fields 180, Proudlock 175, Yankoski 182 and Green 168. The forwards each are about six feet tall. The defenders are chunky and tough.

Various reserve combinations also showed well last night, and the Jacket chiefs are convinced that the pressure will be reduced very little when the local spares take to the ice.

Although the drills have been exceptionally hard and merciless, Gregg is the only casualty. The big right winger has pulled a muscle in his left leg, but he is determined to be "in there" tomorrow night, unless his injury becomes aggravated. Gregg has so much class that he can limp a little and still look good.

FISHER IMPRESSIVE

In some of the earlier practice sessions Fisher did not look particularly impressive in the nets, but when "bearing down" last night he pulled off one sensational save after another. The Jackets' foes probably will find that slipping the puck past him is a right difficult task.

The London puckmen who are to help the locals lift the lid are expected here late today, and they may work out at the Garden tonight. The Jackets are unfortunate in having drawn the title favorites as opening game foes, but they are determined to give the visitors a fierce fight from start to finish.

That the importation of a young, aggressive club that shapes up as a winner has served to revive local ice interest is indicated by the advance ticket sale, which is reported to be exceptionally heavy. Ticket prices have been reduced to $1.50 and $1, and the fans appear to appreciate the cut

Random Shots

The Detroit National Leaguers did the Jackets and other International League clubs a favor by purchasing John Sorrell, wingman, from the London Panthers. Sorrell, a skillful stickhandler, was one of the loop's leading scorers last season.

Incidentally, the Detroit Cougars of yesterday are the Detroit Falcons of today. Officials of the Olympia Arena, owners of the National Leaguers, changed the title because Detroit fans found it difficult to pronounce Cougars correctly! Why not Cats?

The Windsor Bulldogs boast the most experienced goalie in the International loop. They have Clint Benedict in the nets. Clint has been in pro hockey for 16 years, and has been with the Montreal Maroons for the last several seasons.

School Gridder Runs 100 Yards To Touchdown

MASONTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The dream of every football player—a 100-yard run for a touchdown—came true to Eddie Groves, Kingwood High School fullback, yesterday afternoon. He took the ball on an off-tackle play from his own goal line and ran the length of the field through the Masontown High team. Menear, of Kingwood, ran back a punt 90 yards for a touchdown in the same game, as Kingwood defeated Masontown, 27 to 0.

NEW BRIGHTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—Activities were commenced today for the staging next Saturday afternoon at Junction Park, of the 100-mile automobile race scheduled for Armistice Day it was necessary to postpone because of the steady rainfall on the holiday.

The majority of the 26 drivers, who were on hand when it was necessary to announce the postponement, have given their assurance to the sponsors of the contest that they will return for Saturday's century classic.

GAME-WINNING PLAY

CARNEY SCORES ON BLOCKED KICK

ST. VINCENT'S WINS, 6-2

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Nov. 12.—St. Vincent's football team snatched a dramatic victory from its rival, the St. Francis College eleven, with less than a minute to play yesterday afternoon when Jack Carney, of Youngstown, grabbed a blocked punt out of the air and ran 25 yards for a touchdown. The score was 6 to 2.

The Loretto collegians and their supporters were all set to clinch a triumph when Carney recovered the pigskin which had been blocked off Sullivan's toe by Dunlap. The speedy end wiggled his way out of the grasp of a couple of desperate tacklers and then out on the field to the goal line. The try for point was missed, but the contest was almost ended and the red-clad hosts had little or no chance to turn the contest.

The first half of the battle was a scorless deadlock. In the third quarter, Loretto registered two points on a safety and the outlook for St Vincent's was very gloomy as the final whistle neared. The play by Carney turned the field into an uproar.

The large St. Vincent's delegation in the big crowd was resigned to the fate of the vanquished when young Carney engineered his dazzling play.

The contest produced two fine lines, which were the main reasons for the small scoring. The lineup:

St. Vincent's—6.		St. Francis—2.
Lengyel	L. E.	Keats
Dunlap	L. T.	Valumas
Pipik	L. G.	Leap
Burke	C.	White
Yankovich	R. G.	Depolo

Rizzo	Q.	Retdduca
Martak	L. H.	Fagen

Score by quarters—

St. Vincent	0	0	0	6—6
St. Francis	0	0	2	0—2

Substitutions—St. Vincent, Caney, Furin, Flauto, Kirchner, Brown, Ondre, Jiska, Genovese. St. Francis, Billetdeaux, Salonyk, Wilson Juraszi, Jammie Eckenrode. Touchdown—Carey. Extra point—None. Safety—St. Vincent (Genovese). Referee—Robb, Penn State. Umpire—Gannon, Duquesne. Field judge—Hannum, Pitt. Linesman—Flannagan, Duquesne. Quarters—15 minutes each.

O. S. U. COACH SHOWS MARKED PESSIMISM

By JESS CARVER.

Mr. Sad Sam Willaman has gone on record with a Looming prediction as to the outcome of the Pitt-Ohio State game this Saturday. Mr. Sad Sam is the head coach at Ohio. He is of the Dobie-Sutherland-Stagg clan, being prone to magnify his ills and aches and pains, and bursts forth with a very inferior inferiority complex when it comes to classifying his ball club.

"If we hold Pitt to two touchdowns," mourned Sad Sam, "I will be satisfied."

Coach Willaman has looked upon the antics of the Panthers but once this fall, having viewed 'em the day they were having their glimmers doused by Notre Dame. How he can figure a ball club such as Pitt was that day could hope to beat any one on two touchdowns is remarkable. Maybe he thought the Pitt club wasn't playing for keeps that afternoon.

DRILL IN SECRET

Anyway, reports from Columbus have it that Sad Sam has been drilling his Buckeyes in secret all week. The showing of the Bucks against the Navy was encouraging, but still, the Navy isn't so hot and I'm inclined to regard Ohio's tie with Wisconsin as being as good a guage of its powers and potentialities as the sinking of the Middies.

Big Billy Bell, the Negro tackle star, who performed in right smart fashion here last year when State played in the Stadium, is to be back at his left tackle post against Pitt. Bell was not used against the Navy, as the Naval Academy lodged a very unjust protest against Ohio's using the Negro star.

Meanwhile, what is Pitt doing for the cause? Plenty. Sutherland gave his hopefuls a stiff workout yesterday morning and has another one booked for this afternoon, tomorrow and Friday morning. The coaches are checking up various parts of the offense and defense, drilling especially against Ohio's aerial attack, which is said to be possessed of a right potent kick.

PANTHERS CRIPPLED

The physical condition of the Panthers isn't what it might be. Ernie Lewis and Mike Milligan, the guys who guard the center of the line, after two weeks of pounding from Nebraska and Tech, naturally are more or less bruised and battered. Daugherty, Pitt's fine center, is nursing some bruises and hurts that could very well be done away with. He had to leave the Tech game, you know, just when he was needed most.

The veteran, Josh Williams, who shone with such brilliance on the defense against Carnegie, is slated to start at his old position at right halfback again this week. Bulldog Reider, still nursing a battered side, figures to be used for relief duty. Heller will be at left half, sure enough, and Jimmy Clark will start at fullback again. Baker, of course, who is looking better and better each week, will be at quarterback.

EXPECT 50,000 CROWD

Buckeye officials at Columbus report a brisk increase in the seat sale and are talking of another 50,000 or better crowd. The wins over Navy, by the Bucks, and over Tech, by the Panthers, served to restore some importance and worth to the ball game.

I have some dope here on what this fellow Wes Fesler did against Navy. He ran with the ball 11 times, gaining 67 yards all told. He passed nine times, completing six heaves for a net of 61 yards, one toss being good for 15 yards and a touchdown.

On the defense, the Navy made only two gains around his end, both of 'em short, and Wes broke through and threw Middie backs for losses aggregating about 30 yards.

Just another busy afternoon for Mr. Fesler.

CROWE TO START

Joe Crowe, of Greensburg, reserve guard and center on the Bucknell varsity football squad, is to start at center for the Bisons as they line up against Wash-Jeff here in the Stadium Saturday afternoon.

Crowe broke into most of Bucknell's games last year as a sophomore, being used as a reserve guard. This year, he's been shifted to center as understudy to Goodwin, the regular snapper-back. Goodwin suffered a leg injury in the game with Villanova, and as the injury has not responded to treatment in a satisfactory manner, Crowe will get his chance to start a game against the Presidents.

Graduate Manager of Athletics Theurer, of Wash-Jeff, has invited the Carnegie Tech varsity squad to attend the game as Wash-Jeff's guests. The Tartans are idle Saturday.

172 TRACK, FIELD, SWIMMING MARKS FALL

MISS MADISON SETS UP 39 RECORDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—In a concerted attack upon time and distance, America's star performers in swimming and track and field bettered the existing marks in 172 instances during the last year, the Amateur Athletic Union has announced.

Applications for recognition will be passed upon at the annual convention in Washington, which opens Sunday.

Feminine athletes out-did the supposedly stronger sex in the number of records set. In swimming, the girl athletes broke 46 records as against 28 for the men, and in track they accounted for 24, while the men collected 17.

Helene Madison led all the record-breakers, having bettered 12 world and 27 American marks. Acceptance of Miss Madison's records is regarded as certain, giving her a clean sweep of all American marks from 100 yards to a mile.

Stella Walsh's name appears 11 times, one of the best of her performances being a 10 8-10 100-yard dash made at Philadelphia on May 30.

Heading the list of men's performances are Frank Wyckoff's 9 2-5 seconds for the century and a discus throw of 169 feet 8½ inches made by Paul Jessup, of Seattle, both of which exceed the present world records. Wyckoff was clocked in the magic figures of 9 2-5 at Los Angeles on May 10, 1930. The present world record is 9.5, held by Eddie Tolan, of Michigan.

Jessup's epoch-making discus throw was made at the national championships at Pittsburgh, the scene also of a 222-foot 6¾-inch javelin throw by Jimmy Demers of the Los Angeles A. C., and a shot put of 52 feet 5¾ inches by Herman Drix, of the same club.

Hoppe Opens War On Billiard Body

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Willie Hoppe, for years king of the professional billiard players and still holder of the 18.1 balkline championship, has announced he will challenge the control of the National Billiard Association by defending his title in a special match with Welker Cochran in New York next week.

Hoppe asserted the match was designed to complete a break with the association, which has claimed complete control of professional billiards under the sponsorship of equipment manufacturers. The veteran said that in addition to Cochran he expected to have the support of young Jake Schaefer, the present world's 18.2 balkline champion, in the move for an independent organization.

There were no classes at the university Tuesday afternoon, due to Armistice Day, and the entire squad, coaches and all, reported at the stadium almost an hour late, but engaged in a spirited workout in preparation for the Pitt fray Saturday.

Coach Willaman probably will put his charges through a stiff session today, but it will merely be going over new plays which have been added to the Buckeye repertoire for the Panther frolic.

Willaman has been stressing the passing attack this week, with Fesler doing most of the heaving and practically every eligible man going out to snare the ovals.

No scrimmages will be indulged in this week by the Buckeyes, as Coach Willaman is not desirous of having any of his charges injured for the battle with the Panthers.

GIZZY EARNS DETROIT GO

Sports Editor.

Battling Gizzy's hurricane winning fight against Benny McArthur in the eight-round semi-final at Motor Square Garden Monday night has earned him recognition in other quarters. He will box on a card at the Detroit Olympia Arena Friday night of next week, having been selected for this spot by none less than Scotty Monteith, matchmaker of the Olympia, who was here to look over the local main bout with the idea of signing the winner to oppose Billy Townsend, of California, at his club.

Monteith, a shrewd boxing man, who was famous as the manager of Johnny Dundee, the Scotch-Wop featherweight and lightweight campaigner, and also as matchmaker for Madison Square Garden, New York, was impressed by the "club fighting" of Gizzy. He predicted the Donora whirlwind would take Detroit by storm in his first appearance.

Gizzy also is matched with Johnny Chiodo, at Johnstown, November 24, and will be seen in a windup at the Garden, probably December 8, as a result of his easy, if somewhat roughs, victory over McArthur.

Between Rounds

The Paul Pirrupo-Rudy Lawless card at the Garden drew about 14,000, a considerable showing at the box. Tommy Brooks and Joe Gillis took eight in the East End arena next Monday night. A previous meeting was called a draw, although Gillis really was the victor, and it was such a good fight that a rematch was a natural.

Much is expected from Georgie Abrams, lightweight, of Newark, O., who beats Alexander Yanowitz in the semi-final to the Benny Pirrupo-Tod Joe Wood bout at the Moose Temple Friday night. Abrams comes highly touted as a boxer and a puncher. Marty Gallagher and Frank Sheck, heavies, box the second bout and Matty Gerbino and Al Matzo are in the opener.

Motor Square Garden is working on an Emmett Rocco-Al Friedman bout for the night of December 1 and plans has a heavyweight card in the making for its benefit show for the week, beginning December 15.

The preliminary card has been completed for the Knox Manufacturing Factory Association bout show in the Cluskey (O.) Auditorium next Monday night, as follows: Freddie Edwards vs. Pete Burton and Tony Leone vs. Carl Cassell, eight rounds each, and Jimmy Perry vs. Freddie Shamrock and Bud Morrison vs. Jake Jones, six rounds each.

Capt. F. F. Stotler Post No. 87, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will stage amateur boxing shows in Masonic Temple Hall beginning Thursday night, November 13. Amateur boxing and other entertainment are held under the auspices of the Men's Club of St. Athanasius Catholic Church, West View, tonight. The program will be held in the church hall building.

Nathaniel Hogan, Negro heavyweight, who was around here for a time, now is looking in New York. He knocked out Jack Mosby, a white opponent, in the second round at Rockland Palace, New York, on October 27. He has a match coming with Knute Hansen, the Dane.

Abe Goldstein, brother of Phil who makes his debut as an amateur boxer in the ring to be held at the Y. M. & W. A. Wednesday night of next week, is a featherweight. Phil is coach of the Y. team.

Jack O'Keefe, of Chicago, manager of Jerry Thomas, writes that the cats and Jerry is ready to return here and box any of the featherweights, starting on one of the cards. Jerry has a tough fellow to beat and is game enough to take on anyone.

Preliminaries to the 118, 126 and 135-pound and heavyweight classes will be disposed of tomorrow night, in the second round of the Pittsburgh A. A. U. boxing tournament at the Fairmont hotel ring. McKeesport, Thirty-one boxers are entered in the lightweight class alone and 12 in the heavyweight division. The tournament will continue through Thursday night of next week and the following Thursday.

George O'Hara, of the North Side, who was technically knocked out in two rounds by Billy Hall at Motor Square Garden Monday night, says he had only a few days of training for that battle and would like to entertain against the lightweights instead of the welters.

St. Vincent's Cards Benefit Battle

BRADFORD, Pa., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—St. Vincent's and St. Bonaventure colleges will play football here November 22 for the benefit of the Bradford unemployed fund, it was made known yesterday. The contest was originally scheduled for Olean, N. Y.

MRS. WATSON BEATEN

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Lili De Alvarez, of Spain, defeated the English star, Mrs. Phoebe Watson, 6-2, 6-2, in the final of the Argentine women's tennis championship here yesterday.

Stribling Victor Over Art Dekuh

ATLANTA, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—Arthur Dekuh, the 6-foot 4-inch Italian, held W. L. (Young) Stribling so well that the best the Georgia heavyweight could do here yesterday was win a comfortable decision on points in 10 rounds.

The tigerish attack which had flattened Otto Von Porat, Phil Scott and K. O. Christner was missing, and the slow fight and frequent clinching by both men was booed on several occasions by the fans.

KISKI BEATS PITT FRESHMEN

J. & E. BREAKS WIN STREAK OF RIDER

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Nov. 12.—Hummer's toe accounted for a victory for Kiski Prep School over the University of Pittsburgh freshmen, a placement kick by him giving his team a 9-to-6 win in a hard-fought battle before 4,000 persons here yesterday.

Pitt tallied the first touchdown after a series of triple passes and line thrusts had placed the team on the Kiski four-yard strip. Mackie plunged over in the final minute of play of the first half.

Kadlic tossed a 17-yard pass to Hamilton and on the next play threw a 45-yard pass to Hamilton, who was downed on the Pitt four. On two smashes at the line Wetzell went through tackle for a score. Both attempts to make the extra point failed. Pitt's kick being blocked and Kiski's attempt to punt the ball ending without gain.

The Kiski Reserves also scored a triumph, defeating Indiana High of Indiana, 7-6. The lineup of the Kiski-Pitt freshman game:

J. & E. TRIUMPHS

TRENTON, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—The Scarlet Hurricane of Davis and Elkins came up from West Virginia yesterday to break the five-game winning streak of Rider College, 28 to 9. The Senators prevented their opponents from making a single first down in the first half.

Whitfield scored a touchdown for the Senators at the outset, and Frozier followed with two more in the second quarter, adding still another in the final moments. Nemeth scored the only touchdown for Rider, in the third quarter.

Each team scored a safety in the final quarter, Whitfield being tackled behind his own goal line, and the same befalling Skillman a few minutes later.

YEARLINGS PLAY TO TIE

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 12. — The freshmen elevens of West Virginia University and Washington and Jefferson College battled to a 6-6 tie in an Armistice Day game played under the auspices of the local American Legion post.

The Vice Presidents were first to score when Demelowitz shot a 30-yard pass to Ercius, who raced 36 yards unmolested over the West Virginia goal line late in the third quarter. The Mountaineers tied the count in the final period when Joe Mazzei intercepted a pass and dashed 20 yards to the Vice Presidents' seven-yard line. From the two-yard mark, Stone tossed a pass to Rine over the goal line. The placement kick for the extra point was wide. The lineup:

ST. THOMAS VICTOR

SCRANTON, Pa., Nov. 12.—(AP.)—St. Thomas blazed its way to a 14-to-0 victory over St. Bonaventure before 8,500 spectators at Brooks Field yesterday. Wally Opekun scored both of the Purple and White's touchdowns in the closing periods, after the archrivals had battled through a scoreless first half. St. Thomas collected 16 first downs to St. Bonaventure's seven.

POTOMAC STATE COPS

of New York U. "The way we pulled through in the Carnegie game in Pittsburgh last Saturday week," Meehan says, "was due mainly to Joe LaMark, whom I regard as the best quarterback we have had in a long time, and a most unusual football player for a sophomore. He has a logical football mind and the gift of leadership. At game time I turn the team over to him, confident that he will run it intelligently—and he always does.

"In the Carnegie game we got off to a great start and scored two touchdowns. Then Carnegie scored one and our fellows began to play as though they were content to protect their lead. This trend was marked at the beginning of the third period and I began to grow fearful. I was afraid that it would be the old story of a green team trying to protect its lead, fighting a hopeless battle against an experienced foe that would catch up with it and then pass it in the fourth period.

Joe LaMark

"AND THEN, OF a sudden, our boys snapped into a sharp, offensive game and went on to score another touchdown and clinch the game. What had happened was that Joe LeMark had given them a tongue-lashing during a rest period. He told them that he wasn't going to stand around and see them do nothing more than play a safety-first game to hold their lead. If they didn't buck up and do some more scoring, Joe warned them, he would walk off the field. They knew he was speaking the truth about their play and that he meant what he said, and they responded to his flaying with as fine an attack as any one could wish to see."

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,
Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 57.

My dilemma over my pitching problems as the 1929 world series loomed was partly eased by a conversation with Howard Ehmke. I always had the utmost confidence in Ehmke, for, when he was right, he was almost unbeatable.

Connie Mack.

In 1929 he had not pitched many games, but he won some of the most important battles that we had fought during the race. He was not used often, but, after long intervals of idleness, he suddenly would step out and win a game that helped us hold our lead or enabled us to get closer to first place.

In this manner he had won nine games for us, not many, to be sure, but when it is considered that they were timely and over powerful rivals, they bulked big.

The reason for Ehmke's infrequent calls to action can be traced to a cranky arm. Some days good, more often unresponsive and dead.

Only Ehmke, himself, knew when he was right and he was my one pitcher who dictated himself when he should pitch. No other pitcher had that latitude.

That was another reason why I kept Ehmke at home at the last Western trip. I wanted him to get his skittish arm in shape in his own way.

UP TO EHMKE

In talking with Ehmke, I pointed out that I needed him badly in the world series if he thought his arm would respond. The decision was reached whereby he would notify me on the morning of the game when he felt he was ready to go and then I could use my own judgement.

That was the reason that I did not announce my pitching selection at the opening game until 15 minutes before play was called.

Ehmke was an exceptional case and I did not think it good policy to use him unless assured by words from his own lips that he was fit and ready and willing to pitch.

A man with a cranky arm such as he alone knows when he is right. I dealt exceptionally with Ehmke for these reasons and as I would not have done with any other pitcher on my staff.

I had in mind that George Earnshaw, my giant righthander, was to take a big part in the series not only as a starting pitcher but also as a man we could depend on in any emergency to relieve.

THE PITCHING PROBLEM

He would have been my choice for the first game had not Ehmke been ready. I also banked on Jack Quinn as a starting pitcher and resolved to use Rommel and Shores only in relief roles.

As to Grove and Walberg, it was my intention not to start either lefthander if I could avoid it unless the series lengthened and we were in a jam.

I knew that both men would be invaluable for relief work and purposed to use them in that role in the early games.

As it turned out, we won the world title in five games. Had a sixth game been necessary, we would have started Grove in Chicago.

My pitching policy as it applied to my lefthanders did not imply that I dreaded using Grove and Walberg against the Cubs.

While McCarthy's men had wrecked lefthanded pitching in their pennant season, I always felt that Grove and Walberg were a cut higher than any National League sidewinder they ever faced.

SOUTHPAWS IN RESERVE

In a short series in which so much was at stake, I thought it sound tactics to play out the righthanded pitching string first and stick to the righthanders as long as they delivered.

Then, if anything happened, I could shoot in Grove and Walberg and, had the series lengthened, I was prepared to use Grove in the sixth game and Walberg in the seventh.

In a previous installment I explained to readers why I kept Eddie Plank, the leading southpaw of his day, out of the 1910 World Series played against the same club we met in 1929.

That policy worked out in 1910 and I felt it would be equally successful in 1929.

The Athletics traveled to Chicago in a special train to open the series in high spirits, feeling that we knew as much about Joe McCarthy's men as if we had played them all through the season.

STARTER IN DOUBT

On the morning of the opening game, my thoughts still ran to the pitcher I would ask to start the big tournament.

We held a meeting that morning, when I instructed my men how to play for each individual Cub, and we also discussed what kind of a game we would play ourselves.

None of my active players had been in a world series before, except Pitcher J. A. Quinn and George Burns, a reserve first baseman, and the meeting ended with me pointing out that it would only be natural for them to be a trifle nervous at the start, but, after the first inning, this nervousness would wear off and then it would be only another ball game.

At this final meeting before the game I never uttered a word about the identity of the starting pitcher.

OLYMPICS PLAY FIREMEN

By TOM BIRKS.

With first place at stake the McKeesport Olympics will battle the East Pittsburgh Firemen in the feature game of the independent grid conference at Parnassus High School field this evening.

Manager Fred Iverson, of the Olympics, is making a great effort to win the title. Bringing this game ahead, with the Firemen playing their best football season, shows the Tube City mentor is supremely confident of the squad under his command. The Olympics met Monessen last evening, and are slated to clash with Ambridge at Fair Oaks on Sunday. Three big battles in five days could only be tackled with a squad like Iverson has wearing the black and white.

Barnes will start at quarterback, with Weston playing fullback. Whitey Fyock and Boots Klinzing will be playing halfback. Vogal will be at quarter for the Firemen. Carroll and Wambaugh at halfback, and Dutch Schirmer, at fullback. The game will be called at 8:15.

M'KEESPORT WINS

By JULIUS LEVIN.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association varsity and reserve basketball teams will have the honor of inaugurating the season in the Greater Pittsburgh district on their home floor Thursday night when they oppose quintets representing the Hill Top Y. M. C. A.

This year's Y. M. H. A. team shapes up as one of the strongest in local amateur basketball circles and is expected to enjoy a banner season under the coaching of Meyer (Buck) Gefsky, former stellar guard of the old Coffey Club, a team which rated with the best in the country a decade back.

One of the newcomers of the Y squad this year is Ben Lubic, last year one of the mainstays of Chick Davies' Duquesne University varsity squad and a nephew of the former Pitt captain bearing the same name. Lubic has shown up well in the early practice sessions and he should add considerable strength to the Gefsky-coached quintet.

PITT TO HAVE SUPPORTERS

Pitt's sensational football victory over Carnegie Tech Saturday has added interest to the plans to take a large crowd of Panther followers to Columbus, O., for the Ohio State game this week-end. It was indicated by the ticket sale at Pitt Stadium and the local agencies today.

With the football holiday and Armistice Day off the calendar the Pitt students were back on the campus today and interest in the week-end trip was running high. It is hoped by student leaders to have 1,500 or 2,000 Pitt students in the cheering section at Ohio State this week-end.

In the meantime the committee working among the alumni groups is busy making final arrangements. Most of the alumni members are expected to reach Columbus Friday evening in time for the big smoker being given by the Ohio State alumni. The smoker will be held for the followers of both teams, according to Dr. George J. Thomas, president of the Pittsburgh Ohio State Alumni Association.

Tickets for the game will remain on sale in Pittsburgh until tomorrow noon. These tickets may be bought at the stadium office or at Spalding's and the Joseph Horne store.

There are some tickets still on sale in Columbus but they are at the end of the field.

Many of the students will go over on the train leaving Pittsburgh at 5 p. m., Friday. The 120-piece Pitt band will go over on this train and parade from the station to the University Club for the alumni smoker.

Three special trains will be run to Columbus. In addition to the 5 p. m. train Friday a sleeper train will leave at 1:30 a. m. Saturday and the third and last will leave at 7:45 a. m. arriving in Columbus at noon.

Several thousand fans may go by automobile as there has been a steady demand for official stickers which give the Pitt cars a reserved parking space adjoining the stadium at Columbus. These stickers are given out to ticket buyers in Pittsburgh.

Sport Vignettes

It won't be long now before the better known fighters will shun Pittsburgh as if it were a plague spot if we don't get a few sensible decisions in main bouts instead of the sort that have marked Bucky Lawless' two bouts with Buck McTiernan and Paul Pirrone at Motor Square Garden and Tom Malco's till with Larry Madge at the Moose Temple in recent weeks. . . . . For the first time in years, the Garden is in a position to bring good fighters here because times are tough in the racket everywhere else and they can do better here financially than in most cities, but such atrocious decisions will shut off the source of supply of talent quicker than any other factor. . . . . Meanwhile, the Boxing Commission goes its merry way suspending fighters, managers and promoters on the slightest provocation, but makes no gesture toward getting around to having the judges and referees figure out the bouts on a sane scoring basis. . . . . A few publicly announced suspensions for officials who repeatedly boot or straddle verdicts or a school of instruction for them in how to score fights would be a short cut to a solution of the problem, if the authorities are sufficiently interested to take a hint.

Some idea of how much Bucky Lawless thought he defeated Pirrone in their battle last Monday night may be gained from the fact that, when the club sought to rematch the pair immediately afterward, Lawless and his manager positively refused to entertain the proposition, saying they didn't want any more of such a hard puncher and would be content to rest on the laurels that went with the ridiculous decision. . . . . Meanwhile, Pirrone and his pilot were more than anxious to sign on the dotted line immediately for a return engagement.

It is doubtful if any admirers of the playing ability of Eddie Baker, the Pitt quarterback and captain, appreciate his worth more than the coaches of the Panthers, all of whom make no attempt to conceal their faith in Baker's leadership. . . . . Eddie is the keystone of the attack and defense and if it were not for the fact that a certain bird named Frank Carideo, of Notre Dame, overshadows all competition at the position, he would be a strong candidate for all-America honors this fall, especially if the Panthers get by the remainder of their schedule undefeated. . . . . At that, Eddie will be high up in the honorable mention lists. . . . . For the sake of the records and in answer to a flock of questions, the following are the nationalities of the Notre Dame "Irish" gridders: Left end, Kosky, Polish; left tackle, Culver, Scotch-Irish; left guard, Kassis, Assyrian; center, Yarr, German, with Cherokee Indian blood; right guard, Metzger, German; right tackle, Kurth, German; right end, Conley, Irish; quarterback, Carideo, Italian; left halfback, Brill, German; right halfback, Schwartz, German, with Jewish strain; fullback, Savoldi, Italian; Schwartz and Brill are non-Catholics.

With Dick Bartell traded down the river to the Phillies, there is no pepper left in the Pirates' infield. . . . Gus Suhr, first baseman, has a lot of it, but is naturally shy and doesn't pop off as a rule. . . . They do say, however, that he cuts a lot of capers in the exhibition games, in which he is as funny as Charley Grimm. . . . Looks as if Southern California got the jump on California in their 74-0 game last Saturday. . . . Either that or the "breaks" decided the battle. . . . The movies ought to tell. . . . Any club seeking a couple of young fellows anxious to make good could do worse than to sign Jack Quinn and Wally Schang, now that this ambitious battery has been turned loose by Connie Mack.—HARRY KECK.

Four Eliminated In Cue Tourney

Peter Daly, who lost to William Greenwood, 100 to 90; James Becker, who was beaten by Earl Dahl, a fellow Buffalonian, 100 to 76; Harry Oswald, Pittsburgh, who bowed to Frank Scoville, Buffalo, 100 to 74, and Dale Campbell, who was set down by Charley Ellis, 100 to 92, were eliminated yesterday afternoon and evening in play in the national elimination billiard matches, at the Ellis Parlors.

The remaining players begin a round robin today, beginning at 2:30 when Dahl and Ellis meet. Ellis meets Greenwood and Scoville meets Dahl in matches slated to begin at 7:30 this evening.

Two Important Developments Now Under Way

By B. C. FORBES

SEVERAL VERY important constructive developments are going on under the surface. They have not yet, however, been perfected. Several obstacles remain to be overcome. The most influential interests in the country are at this moment diligently striving to overcome these obstacles. First, negotiations are quietly under way to bring about an agreement among Eastern railroads to present to the Interstate Commerce Commission plans providing for the establishment of the four great Eastern trunk systems long discussed.

Mr. Forbes.

Highly authoritative assurances have been received that, if the various railway interests can settle their differences and present agreement upon plans, Washington will not interpose objections.

I understand that President Hoover is taking active interest in this matter and that he is favorable to the earliest possible action, as he believes that the settlement of this complicated railway problem, after half a dozen years of objections and delay, would do something to bring about better sentiment and to strengthen the position of our Eastern railway systems.

If the whole truth could be revealed, it would be found that President Hoover is very much alive to the importance of doing everything possible to check depression and that he has been far from idle.

A great deal of importance is attached, also, to the negotiations now in progress for the purpose of putting the vital copper industry upon a satisfactory basis.

Were this only a domestic problem, it could be readily solved, because there is practically unanimous agreement among leading American copper companies regarding the need for keeping production within bounds.

Africa offers the main obstruction at the moment because the extensive mines there are not controlled by business men but are under the necessity of consulting the Belgian government about any proposed plan for restricting output. Governments are notoriously dilatory, therefore, speedy action is out of the question.

PERCY H. JOHNSTON, the forceful president of the Chemical Bank and Trust Company, who has earned a great reputation since he was brought from Louisville 13 years ago to pilot this famous financial institution, said to me yesterday:

"In our 107 years at this bank we have been through a dozen depressions. This nation has had a way of always righting itself and going forward in a bigger way every time. After all periods of great inflation there follows a reaction. In every instance the pendulum has swung back too far. This is what has happened today.

"Here we are, the richest nation in the world, with our banks full to overflowing with money and credit facilities running into untold billions. Notwithstanding this, people are frightened like a child about a hobgoblin story.

"After a while, the sober sense of the nation will prevail. Things will turn for the better. It is inevitable that we will enter another period of prosperity. As to just when, the wisest cannot predict. 'THE BIG THING IS TO HAVE FAITH IN OUR COUNTRY.'"

E. A. PIERCE & COMPANY have become by far the largest stock exchange firm in the United States. E. A. Pierce, managing partner, who is not given to making statements, has been impelled by the unreasoning liquidation of stocks now going on to make this reassuring statement:

"The depression has not wiped out the progress made by American corporations during the years 1926-1929, but, if we were to listen to all the pessimism going the rounds, we might be led to believe that 14 months of declining business had utterly destroyed the solid background of American corporations.

"Selling all through the market seems to be in the final stages. This is no time to turn bearish, no time to sacrifice seasoned stocks, but, on the other hand, an opportunity has been created to purchase common stocks under what appear to be exceptionally favorable circumstances, with income returns and equity values offering unusual attractions.

"On that basis I am quite willing to recommend the purchase of selected common stocks for the longer term and in anticipation of the betterment in general business which 1931 seems destined to bring."

IT HAS BEEN a long time in coming, but the turn will come.

Changes in Custom Office Delay Figures

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—Foreign trade figures for October, normally due on November 15, will be a few days late, the Commerce Department reports, as a result of the changes effected in the New York custom office.

Common Stocks Showing High Yields

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

THE ADJUSTMENT OF prices of common stocks to a conservative investment basis is nearing completion if the old yardsticks of yield and "times earnings" are any indication.

A list of 100 active, listed, dividend paying stocks compiled by J. H. Holmes & Co. showed an average yield of 6.07 per cent at their closing prices on Monday. The list included such market leaders as United States Steel, American Telephone and Telegraph and Westinghouse Electric as well as some of the outstanding local companies.

The 100 stocks were selling at 10.74 times their average earnings for the five years ended with 1930. Conservative estimates of profits for the present year were made.

The publication of these analyses of stocks follows the making of similar surveys of stocks from the standpoint of yield and "times earnings" in this column during the past two weeks. It indicates that adjustments in the stock market have squeezed the water out of the greater part of the entire list and that equity securities offer investors something more than the promise of future appreciation of capital.

Comparison of Stocks

WHILE IT WOULD be ridiculous to flatly state that common stocks in general should sell to yield any specified amount or that they should be priced at any definite number of times earnings, the study is valuable since it indicates a radical change in investment opinion. Fifteen months ago these factors had practically no bearing on appraisals of stocks. The lure of market profits made yield a negligible factor and stocks were valued on a basis of 20 to 25 times earnings rather than 10 or 15 times.

In using information such as is disclosed by the survey it must be remembered that conditions in different industries, the records of individual managements and the resources of the companies will always have a tendency to modify estimates of the values of stocks. The possibilities of continuing present dividends rate during a depressed state of business are also important considerations.

Interesting Variations

STUDY OF THE 100 stocks shows some wide variations in the market treatment of the isues. Some companies with only minor declines in earnings this year and with secure dividends are selling at levels which appear to be bargain prices when judged by the usual standards. Others still seem to be high when the same measuring devices are applied. Of course situations applying to individual companies account for some of these variations.

The equity securities of some of the strongest corporations in the country are now selling at prices which undoubtedly make them worthy of serious investment consideration. At its closing price yesterday of 141⅛ United States Steel common is shown by the table to be yielding about 5 per cent and to be selling for 10.6 times its average earnings for the past five years. American Telephone and Telegraph at 182½ also yields about 5 per cent and is selling for 15 times earnings.

RECOVERY SEEN BY KLEIN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—The firm which eliminates or radically curtails its advertising at this time time in the interest of economy is pursuing a short-sighted policy in the opinion of Dr. Julius Klein, assistant secretary of the United States Department of Commerce, in a statement made to Sturges Dorrance, president of Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., of New York.

Dr. Klein declared that in advertising the business world has at its command a force which, if intelligently employed, will be certain to speed up progress toward economic well being, for past performances have proven the beneficial results of advertising, at a time when business is depressed.

Advertising is to national business at the present moment just what intiative, courage and resourcefulness are to an individual. He stated that all signs indicate that we have reached the bottom of the decline and indeed in some phases, we are gradually moving upwards.

STOCK MARKET AFTER DROP TURNS UP

Rally in Copper Shares, Caused by Metal Price Boost, Spreads Over List

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—(A.P.)—The stock market was a pallid affair during the early hours of trading today, but yesterday's flush of recovery reappeared during the afternoon, with announcement of firmer copper prices.

The market was quiet, but save in a few prominent shares, it was unable to resist light selling pressure, and losses of 2 to 5 points were numerous. An unexpected advance of ½ cent in copper to 10 cents a pound, with reports that large producers were holding out for still higher prices, caused a rally in the copper shares, which gradually spread throughout much of the list.

SHARES RECOVER

U. S. Steel sold off 3 points, then recovered. American Telephone dropped 4 and recovered 2. Shares declining 3 to 5 points to new lows included Union Pacific, Atchison, Missouri Pacific preferred, Radio preferred B, Penney, Lehigh Valley and American Tobacco B. Shares selling off 2 to 4 included American Water Works, Dupont, Air Reduction, American Can, Coca Cola, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, Radio, Westinghouse and Alleghany Corporation. Kennecott and Cerro de Pasco rallied 2 and Anaconda 1.

The day's industrial developments, however, were largely cheering, after making due allowances for the normal seasonal trends at this time. Freight car loadings, as reported for the week ended November 1, showed a decline of about 2½ per cent from the previous week, which was smaller than expected for that period. That week's reduction for the past three years has averaged 8½ per cent.

RISE SURPRISE

Stiffening of copper prices came as a pleasant surprise, and was regarded in financial circles as a favorable augury, in view of the fact that the decline in commodity prices has now run for 15 months, which is about equivalent to the length of the decline in the major periods of deflation of 1893 and 1921. Wall Street has been disappointed in its hopes that commodity prices were scraping bottom several times since last June, but in the light of past history, its present hopes seemed to have some basis. The history of past periods of depressions, furthermore, show that business begins to improve when the curve of commodity prices flattens out, and may work upward for several months before a general upturn occurs in commodities.

The copper statistics for October showed a slight gain in stocks above ground, but this may have been attributable to the fact that some of the larger producers have been declining to sell at the recent low prices. The weekly statistics from the oil industry, which along with copper has been seriously affected by overproduction, were the most favorable in several weeks. Gasoline stocks, which have been increasing steadily of late, dropped 203,000 barrels, to a level slightly below that of a year ago. A substantial reduction in crude output was also achieved.

SLUMPS SHOWN

The weekly steel trade reviews showed a further pronounced slump in ingot output. Iron Age placed operations at 44 per cent of capacity, the lowest of the year, against 48 a week ago. Such a decline early in November is in keeping with the expected seasonal trend, but starting from the recent low levels makes an unusually adverse showing.

Steel trade circles hope, however, that the sharp decline in production together with the firm stand against further price reductions recently initiated by United States Steel, will place the industry in a position for substantial improvement after the first of the year. Iron Age said that the drastic character of the deflation is counted on to add force to the rebound in demand early in 1931.

Call money was again freely offered in the outside market at 1½ per cent, or lower, although it held officially at 2.

Youngstown Sheet Furnace Resumes

One of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company's blast furnaces at Hubbard is melting, after having been banked for a short time. Output from the stack will go to Valley Mold and Iron Company, the largest manufacturer of ingot molds for steel plants in the country.

Sinclair-Prairie Merger Deal Off

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—Negotiations for a merger of Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation with Prairie Oil and Gas Company have been definitely discontinued because of inability to agree on terms satisfactory to both parties, according to Harry F. Sinclair, chairman of the former company.

London Trade Circles See Fight for World Oil Supremacy.

Cabled advices from London indicated that feeling is growing in oil trade circles there to the effect that things are moving toward the opening of a bitter struggle for supremacy in the world's oil markets. The recent move by American exporters in eliminating price schedules for export business has been interpreted there as taking the form of the "opening gun" in the fight. The feeling seems to be that the biggest and most powerful American oil units are girding to take steps in retaliation for the fight which the Shell interests have been waging since their entry into the retail distribution field here on a tremendous scale. Domestic oil shares were firmer in tone, presumably not influenced by opinions ruling abroad.

While considerable comment has been heard because October sales of Woolworth were about 4½ per cent under the corresponding month of last year, conservatives in the company are said to have been pleased with the showing, because an increase of $4,068,988 was recorded over last September, equal to 18 per cent. That continues the sales uptrend begun in August.

Westinghouse Electric preferred recently sold as low as 109, compared with the high of 197¾ this year. Only $3,998,700 worth of preferred is outstanding and the stock is receiving $5 a share annually. The preferred has preference to dividends up to 7 per cent on the $50 par, then it participates with the common equally after 7 per cent has been paid on the common stock. The preferred is non-callable.

Because of the rate and extent of the decline, amounting Monday to 73.49 points in the Dow-Jones industrial average since September 10, many traders believe stocks will recover very rapidly when improvement sets in. A lot of money will be made in purchases made at bottom prices. But the difficulty lies in determining when bottom has been reached. One trader says that in his case the market has had a half dozen bottoms since early in the year. In other words, he bought on six different occasion when he believed bottom had been reached and not a single stock purchased shows a profit.

A brisk rally got under way along toward the end of the fourth hour yesterday after early selling pressure had spent its force. The manner in which a wide list of stocks snapped back indicated that the bear element was moving to beat a hasty retreat as it became apparent that liquidation had subsided at least for the time being. It was evident that while liquidation had been the most potent factor in forcing the recent decline, bear selling had been following along, although perhaps reduced in volume. Utilities came back with sufficient vigor to indicate covering was an important element in the rebound, and similar situations were disclosed in other directions, as for example in Lambert, which jumped a point between sales on five 100-share trades.

Fresh outbursts of weakness in certain of the amusement shares, namely Fox Film, which yielded some 4 points, and Warner Brothers, which dropped about 2½ points to a new low, created a feeling of general uneasiness yesterday. Coincident with the weakness in Fox Film, the head of that company, H. L. Clarke, was quoted as stating that "Fox Film Corporation earnings are running ahead of last year to date and that there is no indication that they will not continue to do so for the entire calendar year." He stated further that "the company has five completed pictures for release and a conservative estimate of net earnings from these is $5,000,000."

TO SELL ALTON AT AUCTION

CHICAGO, Nov. 12.—(AP.)—A public auction sale of the Chicago and Alton Railroad and all its mortgaged property was set for December 11 at Wilmington, Del., in an announcement today by Herbert A. Lundahl, special master for the Federal District Court.

The Chicago and Alton has been in receivership since 1922, and it has been generally understood that the Baltimore and Ohio System was preparing to take over the road to expand its lines westward. The Chicago and Alton has been valued at $125,000,000.

STEEL BANKING ON NEW YEAR

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—With the immediate outlook unimproved, the iron and steel trade is banking on a "precedent" upturn in January, precedent pointing to some measure of recovery at that time just as it offers little hope of a trend change in the remaining weeks of 1930, the Iron Age will say tomorrow in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade.

Steel ingot production has declined to 44 per cent of capacity as against 48 per cent last week. Chicago output has receded to 45 per cent, compared with 50 per cent a week ago. Pittsburgh operations have fallen below 50 per cent and in the valleys not more than 40 per cent of capacity is engaged. Cleveland, with an output of 32 per cent compared with the very low rate of 20 per cent a week ago, is the only producing center to report a gain.

Scrap markets remain inactive and weak, with heavy melting grade down 50c a ton at Pittsburgh and Chicago and $1 a ton at Buffalo. The Iron Age composite price for heavy melting scrap has reached a new low of $11.58 a gross ton, compared with $11.92 last week and $15 a year ago.

DAILY TRUE STORY

'Montmorency'

"Mont-mo-reeeency!"

Sergt. Harris drawled the name in a falsetto and with an expression of disgust.

"It is 'rency,' not 'reeeency,'" father," his daughter Mary corrected him.

"'Reeev' or 'reeency, it's a helluva name!" Sergeant Harris picked up his uniform coat. He was due back at the station house. Mary dutifully helped him on with the coat.

"Pick yourself a regular man, Mary, with a regular name on him like Mike or John," he advised.

"I haven't picked myself any man, Dad. I just happened to be introduced to Mr. Trevelen by Father Carroll, and I just happened to remark to you that I had met him. He's a new lawyer, starting in with—"

"What name?"

"Trevelen."

"Fer Mike's sake, what a mouthful—Montmoreeeency Trevelen! I'd bet ye he does some swell tattin'."

"Go on with you, Dad, or you'll be late."

Called Monty

"Pay no head to your father, he likes to hear the voice of himself," Mrs. Harris advised

Mary laughed gaily.

Sergt. Harris chanced to see his daughter, a little later, with a group of her young friends. They were at a table in the corner drug store near where he lived. Harris bought his cigars, waved a friendly hand at Mary and her friends and went his way.

At home he asked, jovially: "Who was th' plush-haired movie actor guy with you, guzzlin' them banana splits?"

"Nora Donahue, Tom Garson and Mr. Trevelen."

"Trevelen, eh?" Harris walked over to the stand for a match to light a cigar, then he turned to Mary suddenly. "Trevelen? Ha—the lad with 'Montmoreeency' tacked on him, eh?"

It was some months later when Mary came down resplendent in an evening dress.

Mrs. Harris came in with a tall, slim and good looking young man. Evidently Mrs. Harris already knew him.

"Dad," Mary said, "this is Mr. Trevelen, who is taking me to the ball tonight. Monty—meet the Dad. He pretends to be a bear, but he's just a dove, underneath."

"Glad to meet you, Sergeant," Monty said, shaking hands vigorously.

Dad Meets Monty

Mary wasn't long getting ready.

"Bring her home safe, Mr. Trevelen," Mary's mother said.

"Our people are noted for hospitality—at least you could have been civil."

Mr. Trevelen brought Mary safely home from the ball. He brought her safely home from many a dance and picture. Occasionally Sergt. Harris caught a glimpse of him as he called for Mary. He had to make an effort to be even mildly pleasant to the young man.

"'Tis no he man's job, sittin' in a warrrm office, diggin' tricky laws out of books to help some bloodless corporation beat th' poor workin' man," he growled to Mary when she mentioned that Monty was working on an important corporation case at that time widely discussed in the papers. "Take Patrick Donovan now—there's a lad for ye! He is goin' to be rich with his contractin' jobs—he bosses a hundred men—he can mix cement or lay granite blocks with th' best of them, and he can lick any man workin' for him—Pat's a man for ye, Mary—and he's sweet on ye."

"Pat is a nice boy," Mary agreed.

"Nice boy? He's a man, a helluva good man. He's th' sort of a man I want for a son-in-law. Don't be bringing home no slick-haired, skinny Montmoreeency Trevelen to my house."

"You're dodgin', Mary. Honest, now, are you thinkin' of marrying Montmoreency?"

"Who knows?"

Sergeant Harris had to be satisfied with that, but he was worried. All he could do was to shake a finger at Mary and say, "I'll not have ye marryin' no Montmoreeency Trevelen!"

"You and who else?"

"And don't be fresh to your Dad," he warned.

Mary blew a kiss to him from the tips of her fingers and laughed. Her father got red in the face.

Riot at Club

That same evening Sergt. Harris was on his way home and looked in at the Sunrise Night Club for a moment. The doorman said, "You sure get here quick; hurry up, they're raising hell in there!"

Harris hurried in and saw what looked like a free-for-all. At the same time he saw Mary in a corner with Monty standing in front of her as if to protect her from the fighting near them.

"Kill the cop!" some drunk yelled, seeing Harris. Others, just drunk enough, made a rush for Harris. Mary screamed. Monty lifted her up on the table and jumped in. He socked down the man who was about to smash Harris from behind with a chair. Three others jumped for Harris, who was fighting to get his gun.

Harris got to his feet, three men clinging to him. He saw Monty slug two more men. Then he saw "Slink" Nixon pull his rod to shoot. Monty saw it. He made a tackle dive, floored Slink, got his gun, and with this held off the gang.

After it was over, Harris turned to Monty.

"What th' so-and-so do ye mean, takin' my Mary in a dump like that?" he demanded.

He said, "Ye're a son-in-law to be proud of, Montmoreeency!"

THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Discovered

By Tuthill

HARTFORD OAKDALE WHO SO SUDDENLY REAPPEARED IN TOWN, WAS, WHEN THE BUNGLES LAST HEARD FROM HIM, IN SOUTH AMERICA WHERE HE HAD GONE ON A HIGHLY-PAID - BUT MYSTERIOUS MISSION - THAT LOST MOST OF IT'S ATTRACTIVENESS TODAY WHEN HARTFORD GOT NEWS FROM HOME.
THE OLD HOME TOWN PAPER. WELL LET'S SEE IF ANYTHING EXCITING HAS—
WHY WHAT'S THIS...? EGGY BUNGLE ENGAGED TO MARRY MONTGOMERY EL DORADO. WHY...WHAT..? BY JOVE...THIS IS IMPOSSIBLE. AND YET—
AN HOUR LATER WHILE SAYING GOOD-BYE TO HIS UNKNOWN EMPLOYER'S AGENT, HARTFORD HELPED HIMSELF TO MORE DISAGREEABLE NEWS.
YES MIGUEL, I'M LEAVING, AND NOW, GIVE ME THE BALANCE DUE ME, ABOUT $20,000. NO, DON'T ARGUE. MY MIND IS MADE UP. AND—
BUT MY DEAR CHAP YOU MUST STAY. YOU MUST. MY ORDERS FROM MR. EL DORADO ARE TO KEEP YOU HERE UNTIL HE SAYS—
WHAT'S THAT! EL DORADO...? AH, IS HE THE ONE WHO PAID ME $100,000 TO LEAVE TOWN AND—AH NOW I SEE IT...ANSWER ME...TELL ME MORE! EVERYTHING YOU KNOW OR I'LL—
HEY! HEY! MY NECK... LET GO... I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING. I MADE A MISTAKE IN MENTIONING MR. EL DORADO'S NAME. I DON'T KNOW HIM. I NEVER EVEN HEARD OF HIM OR... ALL RIGHT, LET GO. PLEASE. I'LL TELL YOU EVERYTHING! LET GO!
WHILE HOMEWARD BOUND, HARTFORD THOUGHT OF AND TALKED ABOUT LITTLE, EXCEPT THE POSSIBILITIES OF REVENGING HIMSELF ON THE MAN HE RESEMBLES IN MORE THAN APPEARANCE.
AS A LAWYER, I CAN TELL YOU SIR, THAT THIS FRIEND OF YOURS WHO YOU SAY WAS TRICKED INTO GOING ON A WILD GOOSE CHASE WHILE HIS RIVAL STAYED AT HOME AND WON THE LADY'S HAND, CAN DO NOTHING LEGALLY.
WELL MAYBE HE CAN'T DO ANYTHING LEGALLY BUT THERE'S OTHER WAYS. LOTS OF THEM.

Rights of Citizenship

It Is the Government's Duty to Protect All American Citizens at Home and Abroad.

Between the United States and Norway a treaty has just been signed protecting a citizen of the United States in all the rights and privileges of his citizenship.

This treaty provides that when a Norwegian formally becomes a citizen of the United States he ceases to be a citizen or subject of Norway. Thereafter the United States has the sole claim upon his allegiance and service and he has a corresponding claim upon the United States in the protection of his person and of the rights and liberties of his citizenship.

Consequently naturalized Americans of Norwegian origin who may return for a visit to the country of their birth shall no longer be called upon while there to perform military service for Norway or to acknowledge any allegiance or perform any service of citizenship to Norway.

It is high time for the United States to insist upon this respect everywhere for the rights of its naturalized citizens by negotiating similar treaties with other foreign powers.

Ever since George Bancroft was their minister to England the American people have held to the doctrine that naturalization in the United States not only clothes an individual with a new allegiance, but also absolves him from the obligations of the old.

Ever since that time the American people have held it to be the bounden duty of the government to protect the rights of naturalized citizens everywhere with the same vigilance and the same fidelity "as if they had drawn their first breath in this country."

This is the historic American doctrine, but it has not always received from the Department of State and American diplomatic representatives abroad the same support that it finds in the hearts of the American people.

And the failure to make American practice square with American theory in this vital business has encouraged foreign governments to defy the American doctrine by drafting for military service persons born in the United States of alien parents, who continue to reside here, as well as persons of foreign origin who have acquired American nationality through the process of naturalization.

One of the offenders against the doctrine has been the French government. There is on record the case of an American citizen of French origin who enlisted in the American Army and fought all through the great war in that American Army for the cause of France. But this American veteran cannot return to France today, even for a brief visit, without being arrested as a deserter, because he did not enlist in the French Army, although he is an American citizen.

If the American government had the proper respect for the rights of American citizenship, it would not permit such an outrageous condition to continue.

Congress sensed the resentment of the American people against such flagrant violations of historic American doctrine when it adopted a joint resolution which President Coolidge approved more than two years ago. This resolution requested that every effort be made to negotiate treaties with all foreign countries which would protect naturalized Americans temporarily visiting the country of their birth from being "held liable for military service or any other active allegiance" during their visit.

Not only should the new treaty with Norway be promptly ratified by the Senate when Congress convenes, but the administration should follow it up by pressing for similar treaties with France and every other government that is in the habit of violating the constitutional rights of naturalized Americans.

As a matter of history the American people well remember the fact that the War of 1812 was fought to free American citizens from impressment in the British Navy and to maintain the dignity and independence of American citizenship.

What the government in Washington should remember is that the American people have just as deep a feeling on this subject today as they had in the time of their ancestors.

This treaty with Norway is the first evidence that the American government had any American sentiment on this subject.

One of the best definitions of government ever given is also the shortest: "Government is protection." The American Constitution makes no distinction between the duty of protecting the rights of native and naturalized citizens. It is the bounden duty of the government established by that Constitution to give to both the same protection at home and abroad.

New Laws

Care Should Be Taken Not to Clutter Up the Statute Books Unnecessarily.

The League of Boroughs, Townships and Third Class Cities will meet tomorrow night to discuss legislation that is to be presented to the General Assembly.

Many other organizations will also submit recommendations for new laws. Individuals will contribute a multitude of ideas, and the legislators will produce out of their own minds numerous additional bills.

Some of the proposed new laws will be necessary for the proper management of the Commonwealth and its institutions, and for the orderly government of the people. Others will not be necessary.

It is to be hoped the Legislature will guard against the tendency to create new crimes by passing acts forbidding things that, while disagreeable or annoying, hardly deserve to be formally classified as misdemeanors or felonies.

The statute books are already cluttered up with acts branding as crimes various petty things that, in the opinion of many respectable persons, are condemned neither by God nor conscience.

The Legislature would do well to repeal some of our laws which, by general consent, are not enforced.

Keep It Up

The Campaign Against Reckless Driving Should Not Be Spasmodic but Continuous.

The police arrested 284 persons in Pittsburgh Monday for violation of the automobile laws.

They started out to arrest persons who had failed to have their cars inspected, but decided, on account of the many fatal auto accidents during the week-end, to prosecute reckless drivers, also.

The campaign should be continued. The practice of making wholesale arrests immediately after a bad situation has developed and then winking at reckless driving until a number of other persons have been killed is unsatisfactory.

If reckless driving merits punishment—and it does—those guilty of it should be prosecuted, regardless of whether their offense is committed just after the public has been shocked by a series of fatalities or at some other time.

The police should be on the alert for reckless driving, not just now and then, but always.

Can't Clean House With a Hammer

By Nelson Harding

Stop knocking. There's nothing constructive in that.
Conditions don't clear up because they're abused.
Put money to work at the cleaning up job
And use those utensils that ought to be used.

General knocking won't clean up the house.
Abandon the overworked hammer and swing
The brush and the pail and the mop and the broom
And see the results these real cleaners will bring.

Fifty Million Sore Throat

Can't Be Right.

TRAGEDY IN THREE ACTS.

While half the nation coughs and sneezes, Mr. Coffm dashes off this graphic sketch to show how you feel when flu really hits you.

One day you are on top of the world. You stride do the street filled with joie de vivre, as the French say, or pep, we express it informally in America. Nothing can stop yo

Then the flu germ steals up behind you and stabs you the back.

The lesson here may be summed up in these words:

1. Dress warmly, keep your feet dry, change your clot as promptly as you can when you have been out in rain, sn or sleet.

2. Spray your throat if you feel a tickling sensation the

3. Open your bedroom windows at night, give the fre air a chance to keep you healthy.

There are other rules for baffling the flu germ, but th are the most important.

It is well to follow them carefully now, when autumn h not quite passed. Winter is not quite here.

If all Americans had followed these rules in the last fe days, there would be fewer colds than there are, and less pne monia than is threatened.

Fifty million sore throats can't be right.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Speak Up, Priscilla

Some years ago we said that the temperance lecturer was a fool who had talked himself out of a job.

Now it looks as if the next national election will give him the chance of renewing his oratorical option and again using his fierce looking shillabers as horrible examples.

His present status is something like the militant suffragette who is unhappy because she has nothing to mill about.

The ladies have the vote. Nobody counts 'em. But they have them.

What effect has the group picture of a political candidate, surrounded by his wife, on the female vote of the nation?

"What a terrible looking frump. If she ever went to a beauty parlor they must have been busy. Three double chins and breaking ground for a fourth.

"She's got a figure like a ferry-boat. Goodness, her husband must have met her on a freight elevator.

"I wouldn't send her to Washington if she was the last man in the world."

So saying the voteress reverses her politics and votes for the other candidate, and he is elected by a charming majority.

And for no reason at all, except that his wife is nervous and can not stand the noise of flashlight pictures.

So he had all his pictures taken in solitary grandeur. He is just as much married as the other man and his apron strings are operating on the same wave length.

But a woman is still a woman with all her feminine intuition and leaping impulses. When she send a man to Washington she knows that his wife goes with him and that his secretary answers the telephone.

A man will vote for a man. But very rarely will a woman vote for another woman. And a lady will never be President of the United States until the ladies stop doing their knitting with hatchets, organize a national campaign committee and roll up 50,000,000 shrill votes for a member of their own sex. The women have been around here just as long as the men have, and even Senator Heflin will not claim that the first trip of the Mayflower was a stag affair.

CARDAN

By Archibald Henderson

One of the conspicuous figures in the history of science and in the field of biography is Girolamo Cardano, whom we call Cardan. Although a mathematician of eminence, Cardan reaped unjustly the credit, due to another, for discovering a solution of the general cubic equation. In histories of mathematics, it is still customary to speak of this solution as Cardan's, although it seems clear that he acquired it from Tartaglia, and then, with bare-faced effrontery, published it as his own.

The second exceptional distinction attached to Cardan is associated with the art of biography. His work, a sort of autobiography, De Vita Propria Liber, is as fascinating as a novel, and may be accepted as a landmark in that field. This book is a remarkable specimen of self-analysis; it is the product of a brain of the first order engaged in examining itself and its functions. Garrulous, discursive, Cardan nevertheless gives a clear and indelible picture of himself, which made a profound impression upon his age and gained a permanent place for itself in literature.

Cardan was born at Pavia, Italy, in 1501. Like Cellini, the Florentine, Cardan lived a life of adventure, full of exciting incidents and disgraceful episodes.

Both rendered themselves immortal by writing extraordinary autobiographies; and both lived, beyond the age of seventy, lives rich in contributions to both art and science.

Cardan's father was well acquainted with the works of Euclid, and was a great student. Cardan's boyhood was passed in wretched circumstances, which he finally surmounted triumphantly. A doctor by profession, he studied at universities in both Pavia and Padua; but the first forty years of his life were largely lived in hardship and struggle. Finally these efforts were crowned with success, and he became, as has been said, the most popular, fashionable and sought-after physician in Northern Italy. He effected some extraordinary cures, which he describes fully in a chapter in his autobiography entitled "Successes in My Practice."

Cardan was a man of exceptional versatility and wrote on many different subjects. He lists scores of books he had written, on medicine and philosophy, on mathematics and astronomy, on art and literature, on the immortality of the soul and on games of chance. He was an inveterate gambler for the greater part of his life, and lost an uncalculated amount at play. In an introduction to "The Book of My Life," Jean Stoner says: "Cardan's busy brain produced enough to fill seven thousand pages of folio . . . With the exception of a few treatises in the vernacular, the entire body of his literary work is in Latin. Many of his books ran through six or seven editions."

For eight years Cardan occupied the chair of medicine at the University of Bologna. For a time he gave public lectures on mathematics at Milan, and later he was called to a professorship at the University of Pavia. His great work was entitled Ars Magna, and was a comprehensive algebra, embodying a great mass of useful processes and formulas.

Certain special types of the cubic equation had been solved in Cardan's epoch, notably one by Scipione del Ferro and another by Nicolo Tartaglia. Cardan was inquisitive about Tartaglia's claim to discovering a method for solving the general cubic equation; and finally enveigled Tartaglia into explaining it to him.

In 1545, Cardan published this method in his Ars Magna, without mention of Tartaglia. Cardan has his defenders, however; and his publication was said to have been in the interest of science, since Tartaglia was very secretive and would not have given his discovery to the world.

Cardan, for all his ability, was not a little of a scoundrel, and his piratical conduct would find no justification today. But it cannot be denied that in that age the publication of scientific results, whatever the attribution of discovery, greatly furthered the development and progress of science.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Nothing surprises or enrages the average wife more than to tell her that it's up to her to earn her keep, like any other worker. For all women believe that they confer the greatest possible favor upon a man when they marry him and regard any subsequent chores as additional condescension.

Nor can you blame them for this attitude. They've been trained into it since birth. To begin with, their parents treated them like prize packages and gave them special concessions and exemptions which were denied to their little brothers.

Then the movies and magazines took up the easy task of convincing them that they were God's Greatest Gift to Humanity. Lastly, devoted lovers vowed themselves blue in the face and hocked their watches to prove the same point. No wonder that the Dear Girl, when she married, felt that she was doing plenty for the Big Boy.

Then the honeymoon waned and the new husband begins to complain because vest buttons are missing and meals aren't on time. Naturally the bride is amazed and indignant.

"How dare he!" she cries. "What does he think I am—a servant?"

She is not a servant nor does her husband consider her as such. But she is a human being with the same moral obligation to earn her living which rests upon all other human beings and which has not been diminished nor altered by the fact that she has married.

Marriage is one way of earning a living. It is also other things—rare and beautiful things—but fundamentally it is a working partnership in which favors and obligations are equally divided. A woman does a man no greater favor when she marries him than he does her.

She wanted to marry him as much as he wanted to marry her or she wouldn't have done so. She gives no greater gift—she makes no greater sacrifice. Nor does she place him under personal obligation when she performs her housework.

She'd have to perform some kind of work, if she's a self-respecting citizen.

Housework is the business which she has elected to follow. It is a hard business, at times. It has periods of strain and anxiety. It also has periods of leisure and irresponsibility. On the whole, as a means of earning one's living, it is no better, no worse, than any other job.

And it is a wife's duty to be as efficient in that job as in any other. Nor should she expect elaborate gratitude from her husband if she is efficient . . . nor get mad when he raises Cain when she isn't.

All of which is simple sense, but try just to make the average bride believe it. For, unless she has had the romantic nonsense knocked out of her as a working girl, she still believes that ladies are loot and that gentlemen should pay largess for the pleasure of having them around.

If modern business does nothing else save teach females that they're people and, as such, should pay their own way, it has done plenty for the human race. Nothing prepares a girl better for marriage than a few mean, male bosses.

And if the Missis would work half as hard to please her husband and hold down her job as housekeeper as she does to propitiate a boss and keep a $20 a week job as filing clerk, matrimony would become one of our best, instead of one of our worst risks.

Isn't It So?

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 12.—O. Henry called them "the u loved romanticists." They are a city's vast army of shabbi genteel dreamers of romance chained to high stools, da shipping rooms and other inconspicuous posts. They fill h bed-rooms, up many flights and down at the end of the ha

They are devotees of lovelorn columns and two-penny thrills of the "Millionaire Love Nest" headlines in tabloids. Respectable, clean living, they have clutched at success, missed and make the best of a rather fusty fate. In theaters, they are last of the gallery gods.

Almost every one of them can reel off the complete history of every screen idol. When a Hollywood star stumbles they are the defenders who rush avidly to defense in movie magazines and movie columns. They will stand in the wind and rain at cinema openings.

When the reigning "America's sweetheart" trips out of a platinum limousine they gasp with admiration and will remain on the curbs with eyes ever shining and fervid until she departs. Without such worshipers there would be no picture palaces, tabloids or 10-cents-a-dance halls.

The men are the type who leave boarding houses every morning and return every evening with the regularity of a clock tick. They are sticklers for overshoes, umbrellas, vest-pocket pencil clips and ride-the-pony lunchrooms. Outwardly prosaic, inwardly they foment with stuff of glamorous dreams.

The ladies are quietly dressed and suffocatingly sedate and in offices and workroom assay high in efficiency. It is difficult to imagine them constantly indulging roseate dreams. Yet they form the bulk of the audiences that determine the five-figured salaries of the Conrad Nagels.

It is axiomatic "the unloved romanticists" seldom marry. Nor do they whimper over their isolation. All they want is their dreams. For them the fair finger of romance is always beckoning through the gloom and pointing only to the illusive mirage. Or something.

The distinctly vexatious ma ners of theater box office men h mellowed. One no longer stifl an urge to reach in and twea their beezers. ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

It is kinder not to say anything than to voice your sympathy to the parent whose son or whose daughter has gone astray.

The sorrow resultant is hard enough to bear without being compelled to listen to words of friends concerning it.

Words reopen wounds which may be in process of healing.

The truly sympathetic makes no reference to the subject that has caused sadness and despair.

He seeks by attitude of understanding, quietly going about and doing little helpful acts to alleviate the pain which is being experienced.

The person of wounded pride does not wish nor seek sympathy.

He does appreciate the presence of friends in whom he has most faith.

He hopes his friends will allow him to do as he pleases and will not expect anything of him.
